A's vs. ORIOLES

The A's lead the season series 5-2...won three of four in Oakland in April and are 2-1 in Baltimore...need one more victory to win the season series for the third consecutive year and 11th time in the last 12 years...have won 15 of the last 18 games and have won six consecutive series...have won 17 of the last 22 games at Camden Yards...are 70-30 (.700) against the Orioles since the start of the 1999 season, which is the best winning percentage against the Orioles by an American League team over that span...since moving to Oakland in 1968, the A's are 237-236 against the Orioles...that breaks down to 117-124 in Oakland and 120-112 in Baltimore...including 53-38 at Camden Yards...all-time, the A's are 973-916 against the Orioles/Browns/Brewers...of the other seven original AL franchises, the Orioles are the only team the A's have a winning record against.

TODAY'S TIDBITS

Kevin Kouzmanoff is batting .367 (36 for 98) with five home runs and 14 RBI in June and his 36 hits rank third in the American League.

Cliff Pennington is batting .447 (21 for 47) with seven multiple hit games over his last 15 games after going 3 for his previous 46.

THIS DATE IN A's HISTORY

In 1925 Bill Lamar extends his hitting streak to an Athletics franchise record 29 consecutive games...in 1990 Dave Stewart pitches the fifth no-hitter in Oakland history in the A's 5-0 win at Toronto...after walking the first two hitters he faced, he retired 25 in a row before a two-out walk in the ninth...in 1996 the A's hit three home runs in an 11-9 win at California...it gives Oakland 18 home runs in four games, tying an American League record...in 2003 Eric Byrnes becomes the fifth player in Oakland history to hit for the cycle and also ties an Oakland record with five hits in the A's 5-2 win at San Francisco.

ABOUT THE A's

ABOUT THE A'S: Swept a three-game series from Pittsburgh over the weekend, their third sweep of the season and their first since May 21-23 against San Francisco...the three-game winning streak is one short of the season high of four (April 6-9 and May 26-29)...however, have lost seven of the last 11 games and 10 of the last 15...are in third place in the American League West and trail Texas by 10 games...finished the month of May in first place in the AL West and had a one-game lead with a 28-24 record...have gone 9-16 in June while Texas has logged a 20-5 record and Los Angeles 17-8...have lost 11 games in the standings over that 25-game stretch...are 10-15 in the first game of a series, 10-15 in the second game and 14-8 in the third game...have 25 days alone in first this year, eight days tied for first, 26 days in second, one day tied for second, 23 days in third and one day in fourth.

IN JUNE: The A's are 9-16 (.360) in the month of June, which is the second worst record in the American League (Baltimore, 8-16)...have clinched a losing record in June for the second consecutive season after seven consecutive winning June's...the 16 losses are the A's most in June since 1999 when they went 10-16...the last time the A's lost more than 16 games in June was in 1986 when they went 7-22...are batting .281 (245 for 873), which ranks fifth in the AL...however, have just 62 walks, which is tied for second fewest...the last time the A's walked fewer than 69 times in a month of 12 or more games was in July, 1987 when they had 60...have hit 20 home runs this month after connecting for just 15 in both April and May.

HOME AND AWAY: The A's went 3-3 on the last homestand against Cincinnati (0-3) and Pittsburgh (3-0)...begin a six-game road trip tonight against Baltimore (three games) and Cleveland (three games)...went 2-7 on the last road trip against San Francisco (0-3), Chicago (1-2) and St. Louis (1-2), marking the third time in five trips this year in which the A's finished with two wins or fewer (went 1-5 on a pair of six-game trips from April 27-May 2 and May 11-16)...the A's are 13-24 (.351) on the road and 24-16 (.600) at home...have the third worst road record in the American League...have a 5.17 ERA (182 er in 317.0 ip) on the road compared to 2.88 (117 er in 365.0 ip) with six of their eight shutouts at home...have the highest road ERA in the AL and the lowest home ERA...have allowed 56 home runs on the road compared to 22 at home...have allowed the most road home runs in the AL and have yielded the fewest at home...starting pitchers are 8-16 with a 5.10 ERA (115 er in 203.0 ip) on the road compared to 18-11 with a 2.83 ERA (78 er in 248.0 ip at home).

NIGHT AND DAY: The A's have an 18-10 (.643) record in day games compared to 19-30 (.388) at night...the A's day record is tied for fourth best in the American League and the night record is second worst (Baltimore, 15-37)...have a 2.92 ERA (81 er in 249.2 ip) during the day and a 4.54 ERA (218 er in 432.1 ip) at night...have the lowest day ERA in the AL.

CLOSE CALLS: The A's improved to 13-7 (.650) in one-run games with the win on Sunday, which is the second best record in the American League (Chicago, 15-8, .652)...however, have lost five of their last eight one-run decisions after winning 10 of their first 12...went 15-23 in one-run games last year, which was the second worst record in the AL...are 3-3 in extra inning games, which matches the A's extra inning win total from last year...have four walk-off wins after tallying just five in all of 2009.

PITCHING: A's pitchers have compiled a 2.67 ERA (19 er in 64.0 ip) and .227 (55 for 242) opponents batting average over the last seven games...have struck out 60 in 64.0 innings over that stretch...the A's lead the American League in shutouts (8) and fewest hit batters (13) and are tied for the lead with Chicago in pickoffs (15)...A's starters are 2-2 with a 2.36 ERA (12 er in 45.2 ip) and .221 (38 for 172) opponents batting average over the last seven games and have struck out 44 in 45.2 innings...have a 3.85 ERA for the season, which ranks third in the AL.

OFFENSE: The A's matched a season low with three hits on Sunday, did not score an earned run and won the game, 3-2...it marked just the sixth time in Oakland history the A's collected three hits or fewer, did not score an earned run and won (last: September 14, 2002 vs. Seattle)...the A's have the second fewest home runs in the American League (50) and the third fewest runs (226) and extra base hits (198)...lead the AL in stolen base percentage (53 for 66, 80.3%), rank second in sacrifice hits (26) and tied for second in sacrifice flies (26)...the 26 sacrifice hits are the most by an A's team before the All-Star Break since the 1998 club had 30.

IN THE PINCH: A's pinch hitters are 11 for their last 26 (.423) with four walks, two home runs and nine RBI...are batting .319 (15 for 47) with six walks, three home runs and 11 RBI for the season...lead the American League in average and home runs and rank second in RBI...the 15 pinch hits are already the A's second best total over the last six seasons (had 16 in 2008)...the three home runs match their combined total from 2005-09...A's pinch hitters combined for a .173 average over the previous six seasons.

DEFENSIVE DOINGS: The A's turned three double plays on Sunday but have just 59 for the season, which is second fewest in the American League (Los Angeles, 58) and tied for third fewest in the majors.

INTERLEAGUE PLAY: The A's finished interleague play with an 8-10 record (3-3 vs. San Francisco, 1-2 vs. Chicago, 1-2 vs. St. Louis, 0-3 vs. Cincinnati, 3-0 vs. Pittsburgh)...it marked the second consecutive season and fourth time in 14 interleague seasons the A's finished with a losing record against the National League...are now 70-74 (.486) in interleague play since 2003 but are 136-112 (.548) all-time, which is tied for the sixth best record in the majors...ranked fourth in the majors this year with a 3.34 ERA...hit just eight home runs, which tied for second fewest in the majors and was second fewest in Oakland history (6 in 2006).

THE DISABLED LIST: The A's have used the disabled list 15 times this year and 79 times since the start of the 2007 season (17 in 2009, an Oakland record 25 in 2008 and 22 in 2007)...the 15 players have combined to miss 591 games (39.4 games per stint)...began the year with six players on the DL and it now stands at seven (Anderson, Buck, Chavez, Devine, Duchscherer, Meloan, Outman)...have had at least seven players on the DL every day since April 21 and at least five on the DL all year...have not had fewer than five players on the DL since April 28 of last year when they had four...have not had fewer than three players on the DL since the end of the 2006 season, when they had just one.

FOR STARTERS: Is scheduled to make his 16th start of the season...the A's are 5-10 (.333) in his starting assignments and are 25-36 (.410) in his 61 career starts...has tossed six or more innings in 12 of his 15 starts, allowed two runs or fewer seven times and walked one batter or fewer 13 times.

FIVE-GAME LOSING STREAK: Since tossing his perfect game on May 9, he has gone 0-5 with a 4.31 ERA (48.0 ip, 59 h, 26 r, 23 er, 9 bb, 30 so, 6 hr) and .304 (59 for 194) opponents batting average over his last eight starts...however, has received just eight runs of support over that span (1.50 RSA)...according to the Elias Sports Bureau, the eight consecutive starts without a win following a perfect game matches Mark Buehrle for the longest streak in major league history...the five-game losing streak is the longest by an A's pitcher this year and is tied for the second longest active streak in the American League (Matusz, BAL 8)...it is the second longest losing streak of his career to an eight-game streak from April 29 to September 23, 2007...has seven losses overall, which is tied for eighth in the AL.

RUN SUPPORT: Received two runs of support in his last start, the 11th time in 15 starts the A's have scored two runs or fewer while he was pitching...his season run support of 2.59 (27 rs in 94.0 ip) is second lowest in the majors (Lilly, CHI 2.03)...has six runs of support in his seven losses this year (42.2 ip, 1.27 RSA) and 25 runs of support in his 28 career losses (151.1 ip, 1.49 RSA)...is 2-26 in 39 career starts with support of two runs or fewer and zero or one run of support and 15-2 in 22 starts with run support of three or more...has career run support of 3.36 (131 rs in 351.1 ip) as a starter.

DON'T WALK: Has walked one batter or fewer in 13 of his 15 starts and has issued just 16 walks in 94.0 innings, an average of 1.53 per nine innings...that is the third lowest mark in the American League...ranks eighth in strikeout to walk ratio (3.63)...had a streak of 21.0 consecutive innings (79 batters) without a walk from May 3 to 14.

ON THE BASES: Ranks second in the American League with five pickoffs (Buehrle, CWS 7)...now has 14 career pickoffs, including a career high seven in 2008...the Twins Danny Valencia stole second base in the second inning on June 4 and that was the first stolen base he allowed since Aug. 20, 2008, also against Minnesota (Punto)...had gone 230.1 innings without allowing a stolen base...opponents are 1 for 1 in stolen base attempts off him this year and 4 for 9 (44.4%) in his career.

AGAINST THE EAST: Is 3-1 with a 3.00 ERA (10 er in 30.0 ip) and .189 (20 for 106) opponents batting average in five starts against American League East teams and 1-6 with a 4.22 ERA (30 er in 64.0 ip) and .297 (76 for 256) opponents average in 10 starts against everyone else...now has a career record of 12-7 against teams from the East and is 6-21 against everyone else.

NIGHT AND DAY: Is 3-1 with a 3.00 ERA (11 er in 33.0 ip) and .229 (27 for 118) opponents batting average in five starts during the day compared to 1-6 with a 4.28 ERA (29 er in 61.0 ip) and .283 (69 for 244) opponents average in 10 starts at night...however, has allowed six of his 10 home runs during the day.

INNING BY INNING: Has yielded 23 of his 43 runs this year in the fifth and sixth inning (10 in the fifth, 13 in the sixth)...has a 2.40 ERA (16 er in 60.0 ip) and .249 (56 for 225) opponents batting average over the first four innings of a game and a 6.35 ERA (24 er in 34.0 ip) and .292 (40 for 137) average after that.

THE LONG BALL: Allowed his 10th home run of the season June 17, which is a new career high...yielded nine in both 2007 and 2009...seven of the 10 home runs have been solo shots.

DAYS REST: Is scheduled to pitch on six days rest today as the A's had two days off over the previous five days...is 2-6 with a 4.66 ERA (30 er in 58.0 ip) in nine starts on four days rest and 2-1 with a 2.50 ERA (10 er in 36.0 ip) in his other six starts.

MONTH-BY-MONTH: Is 0-2 with a 4.50 ERA (12 er in 24.0 ip) in four starts in June...went 1-4 despite a 3.15 ERA in six starts in May and tied for the American League lead in losses...was 3-1 with a 4.20 ERA in five starts in April...started the season 3-0, which gave him a career best four-game winning streak dating back to July 31 of last year...went 4-0 with a 3.58 ERA and .218 opponents batting average during the winning streak, which spanned five starts.

PERFECT: Pitched the 19th of the 20 perfect games in Major League history on Mother's Day, May 9, against Tampa Bay (includes Don Larsen's in the 1956 World Series)...it was the second by an Athletic and it came 42 years and one day after Catfish Hunter did it against Minnesota on May 8, 1968...he was named American League Player of the Week for his effort...retired the first two batters he faced in his next start May 14 at Los Angeles to extend his consecutive batters retired streak to an Oakland record tying 29 (also Hunter, May 3-8, 1968)...the streak ended on a two-out double by Abreu in the first but he retired 11 straight after that for a stretch where he retired 40 of 41 hitters...please see the expanded game notes at pressbox.oaklandathletics.com or mlbpressbox.com for more information about his perfect game.

LAST START: He extended his losing streak to five games in the A's 4-2 loss to Cincinnati a week ago today in Oakland...allowed 10 hits, his fourth start this year in which he allowed 10 or more hits...yielded a two-run single to Miller in the second and a RBI double to Votto in the third but the A's scored twice in the bottom of the third to make the score 3-2...was also charged with an unearned run in the fifth when Rolan scored on a Pennington error.

BRADEN vs. BALTIMORE: Is 5-1 with a 1.41 ERA (38.1 ip, 22 h, 8 r, 6 er, 10 bb, 29 so, 2 hr) in seven career appearances, six starts...has five of his 18 career wins against the Orioles and the ERA is his lowest against any team...is 2-0 with a 1.20 ERA (2 er in 15.0 ip) in three starts at Camden Yards and 3-1 with a 1.54 ERA (4 er in 23.1 ip) in four games, three starts, in Oakland...is 4-1 with a 1.50 ERA (6 er in 36.0 ip) in his six starts...is 1-0 with a 1.64 ERA (11.0 ip, 6 h, 3 r, 2 er, 3 bb, 8 so) in two starts this year...the win came in a 4-2 A's win on April 16 in Oakland...retired each of the first 10 batters he faced before Markakis doubled with one out in the fourth...had a 4-0 lead when he allowed his only runs of the game on a two-run home run by Wigginton in the fifth...then had a no decision in a 5-1 loss at Baltimore May 25...tossed just 4.0 innings as he left the game early with a sprained left ankle, suffered in mid-May...allowed one unearned run as a Pennington error allowed Tejada to score in the fourth...left with the score tied at 1-1...made his Major League debut against Baltimore on April 24, 2007 and picked up the win.

FOR STARTERS: Is scheduled to make his 17th start of the season, which is red for the American League lead...the A's are 6-10 (.375) in his starting assignments and his teams are 115-122 (.485) in his 237 career starts...has tossed at least six innings in 13 of his 17 starts, allowed two runs or fewer five times and walked two batters or fewer seven times.

LOSING STREAK SNAPPED: Picked up his first win since May 8 in his last start, snapping a four-game losing streak...posted a 3.91 ERA (22 er in 50.2 ip) and .238 (45 for 189) opponents batting average during the losing streak, which spanned eight starts...the eight-start streak without a win was one short of his career high of nine (July 4-October 2, 2001 and July 17-August 28, 2004)...the losing streak was his longest streak since dropping five straight from April 9-June 2, 2005...has seven losses for the season, which is red for eighth in the American League

HOME AND AWAY: Is 0-5 with a 6.95 ERA (35 er in 45.1 ip) and .312 (58 for 186) opponents batting average in eight starts on the road compared to 3-2 with a 3.19 ERA (17 er in 48.0 ip) and .233 (41 for 176) opponents batting average in eight starts at home...has the red fifth highest road ERA in the American League...has yielded 10 of his 14 home runs on the road and ranks red second in the AL in road home runs...has not won on the road since August 26, 2008 at St. Louis and is 0-6 with a 6.92 ERA (41 er in 53.1 ip) over his last 10 road starts.

RUN SUPPORT: Received five runs of support in his last start, matching his season high...has three runs of support or fewer in 13 of his 16 starts this year and his season run support of 3.18 (33 rs in 93.1 ip) is red fourth lowest in the American League.

IN JUNE: Is 1-4 with a 5.23 ERA (18 er in 31.0 ip) and .280 (35 for 125) opponents batting average in five starts in June...this is the sixth time in his career he has lost four games in a month (last: September, 2004)...has never lost five in a month...over the last 12 years, the only A's pitcher to lose five games in a month is Joe Kennedy (September, 2005).

EXTRA BASE HITS: Has yielded a Major League leading 48 extra base hits, ranks red second in triples (6) and red tied for second in doubles (28)...is red tied for fourth in the American League in home runs (14)...has a .500 opponents slugging percentage, which is red second highest in the AL (Blackburn, MIN .553)...set an Oakland record by allowing eight extra base hits on May 2 at Toronto...broke the previous mark of seven (eight times, last by Mike Oquist on May 4, 1999).

OPPONENTS BATTING: Has allowed a .324 (34 for 105) average with runners in scoring position, including .375 (18 for 48) with RISP and two outs...opponents are 27 for 84 (.321) with 12 walks (.406 on-base percentage) when leading off an inning...has issued 24 of his 37 walks to left-handed hitters.

ALL STARTS: Has made 237 career appearances and all have been starts...those are the fourth most appearances in major league history among pitchers who have never made a relief appearance.

2010 HIGHLIGHTS: He had a no decision in the A's 5-3 loss to Seattle on Opening Night April 5 in Oakland...it was his first start since September 27, 2008 against the Chicago Cubs...became the A's fifth different Opening Day starter in the last five years (Braden, Blanton, Haren, Zito)...it was his seventh career Opening Day start and he is 3-0 with a 2.59 ERA (12 er in 41.2 ip) in those seven starts...picked up his first win since September 6, 2008 in the A's 6-2 win over Baltimore April 15...was the losing pitcher in the A's 3-1 loss to New York April 21 in Oakland...Hughes no-hit the A's over the first seven innings before Oakland scored its only run in the eighth...allowed eight runs on April 27 at Tampa Bay and nine on May 2 at Toronto to become the second pitcher in Oakland history to allow at least eight runs in back-to-back starts...Mark Mulder was the other (September 15-21, 2004) but Sheets was the first with at least eight earned runs...the nine runs against the Blue Jays were his most in a game since August 15, 2005 at Colorado when he allowed 10 runs...snapped his three-game losing streak in the A's 4-2 win over Tampa Bay on May 8...combined with Wuertz, Blevins, Ziegler and Bailey on a three-hit shutout in the A's 3-0 win over San Francisco May 23...however, ended up with a no decision as he tossed six innings but left with the score tied at 0-0...it was the 17th time in Oakland history a starting pitcher had a no decision in a shutout...had his fourth consecutive no decision in the A's 5-4 win at Detroit May 28...it was the first time in his career he had four straight no decisions...hurled 7.0 innings, snapping a career long streak of 13 consecutive starts of fewer than seven innings...tossed 6.0 innings in a 4-2 loss to Los Angeles June 7 to go over the 1500 innings pitched mark in his career...lost his fourth consecutive start in the A's 4-3 loss at St. Louis June 19.

LAST START: He won for the first time since May 8 in the A's 14-4 victory over Pittsburgh last Friday in Oakland...struck out a season high nine batters in 6.0 innings and did not issue a walk...allowed two runs in the first inning on a McCutchen RBI double and an error but the A's came back with two in the bottom of the first...allowed a RBI double to Doumit in the third but the A's scored twice in the bottom of the third and once in the fourth to take a 5-3 lead...also allowed a solo home run to Walker in the fifth.

SHEETS vs. BALTIMORE: Is 1-1 with a 3.75 ERA (12.0 ip, 11 h, 5 r, 5 er, 6 bb, 9 so, 2 hr) in two career starts...the win came in his only start this year, a 6-2 decision on April 15 in Oakland...tossed 6.0 shutout innings despite allowing five hits and walking three...stranded eight base runners and left runners in scoring position in four of his six innings...left with a 5-0 lead and the bullpen allowed single runs in the seventh and ninth innings...the loss came in a 5-4 Milwaukee loss at Baltimore on June 15, 2003...allowed a RBI single to Surhoff in the second inning but the Brewers scored twice in the fourth to take a 2-1 lead...he then yielded four runs in the bottom of the fourth on two-run home runs by Batista and Cruz.

FOR STARTERS: Is scheduled to make his 13th start of the season...the A's are 9-3 (.750) in his starting assignments this year and are 25-19 (.568) in his career...has tossed at least six innings in eight of his 12 starts, allowed two runs or fewer eight times and walked two batters or fewer seven times.

SIX-GAME WINNING STREAK: Is 6-0 with a 2.24 ERA (52.1 ip, 36 h, 13 r, 13 er, 18 bb, 42 so, 3 hr) and .198 (36 for 182) opponents batting average over his last eight starts...the winning streak is a career high and is tied for the second longest streak in the American League this year (Lester, BOS 8)...it is the longest winning streak by an A's starting pitcher since Dan Haren had a 10-game winning streak from April 18-July 1, 2007...his previous career high was four from August 27 to September 22, 2009.

WINS: Is 7-2 and his .778 winning percentage is fourth best in the American League...all seven of his wins have come since the start of May, which is tied for fifth most in the AL over that span...last year he did not record his seventh win until August 27 (number eight came on September 2).

QUALIFICATIONS: Has 75.0 innings pitched, which is four innings short of qualifying for the league leaders...based on a minimum of 70 innings, he ranks third in the American League in opponents batting average (.213) and ninth in ERA (2.88).

THE FIRST INNING: Has not allowed a run in the first inning this year and opponents are 3 for 37 (.081) with three walks...now has a streak of 15 consecutive starts without a run in the first inning dating back to last year and has not allowed a first inning run since September 9, 2009 at Chicago (AL)...has a 1.84 (9 er in 44.0 ip) career ERA in the first inning...this year, he has a 1.69 ERA (9 er in 48.0 ip) over the first four innings of a game and a 5.00 ERA (15 er in 27.0 ip) after that.

MONTH-BY-MONTH: Was recalled from Triple-A Sacramento April 30 and allowed eight runs on seven hits in 5.0 innings in a start that day at Toronto...then went 4-1 with a 1.96 ERA and .211 opponents batting average in six starts in May and 3-0 with a 2.70 ERA and .197 opponents batting average in five starts in June...ranked fourth in the American League in ERA in May, tied for fifth in wins and tied for seventh in opponents batting...was eighth in opponents batting in June.

OPPONENTS BATTING: Has allowed a .205 (9 for 44) average with runners in scoring position...opponents hit .218 (36 for 165) with RISP last year, which was the eighth lowest mark in the American League...opponents are batting .187 (14 for 75) when leading off an inning...has yielded a .144 (14 for 97) batting average the first time through the lineup, .227 (22 for 97) the second time through and .284 (21 for 74) after that...has limited the opponents three, four and five hitters to a .167 (16 for 96) batting average.

THE LONG BALL: Allowed two home runs June 20 to snap a career high tying four-game homerless streak (also August 11-27, 2009)...now has eight home runs for the season...last year, he set an Oakland rookie record by allowing 27 home runs...has allowed all eight of his home runs this year on the road...last year, he surrendered 20 home runs at home to set a Coliseum record...six of his eight home runs have been hit by right-handers after yielding 21 of his 27 home runs in 2009 to lefties.

INTERLEAGUE PLAY: Went 3-0 with a 2.42 ERA (26.0 ip, 18 h, 7 r, 7 er, 6 bb, 26 so) in four interleague starts this year...tied for second in the majors in wins (Buehrle, CWS 4)...is now 5-2 with a 3.10 ERA (17 er in 49.1 ip) in eight career interleague starts compared to 12-13 with a 4.36 ERA in 36 career starts against American League competition.

HOME AND AWAY: Is 4-0 with a 1.35 ERA (5 er in 33.1 ip) in five starts at home and now has a six-game home winning streak dating back to last year...has a 1.84 ERA (9 er in 44.0 ip) over that seven start stretch...is 3-2 with a 4.10 ERA (19 er in 41.2 ip) on the road.

THE DISABLED LIST: Began the season on the 15-day disabled list with a stress reaction in his left scapula...made one rehab start for Triple-A Sacramento on April 19 and was reinstated from the DL and optioned to Sacramento the next day...it was his first career stint on the DL.

LAST START: He combined with Breslow and Bailey on a two-hit shutout in the A's 5-0 win over Pittsburgh last Saturday in Oakland...tossed 7.2 innings, allowed both of the hits and struck out a career high 10...yielded a two-out single to Tabata in the third and a leadoff single to Milledge in the eighth and allowed just two base runners to advance into scoring position.

CAHILL vs. BALTIMORE: Is 2-1 with a 2.84 ERA (19.0 ip, 16 h, 6 r, 6 er, 3 bb, 12 so, 1 hr) in three career starts last year...including a win in his only start this year, a 6-1 A's win at Baltimore on May 26...retired each of the first seven batters he faced and had a 5-0 lead when he allowed his only run on an Atkins home run in the third inning...left after six innings with a 6-1 lead...went 1-1 with a 3.46 ERA in two starts last year...the win came in the A's 9-4 decision in Oakland on June 6...shutout the Orioles on four hits and no walks over the first six innings and allowed just two runners into scoring position...had a 9-0 lead entering the seventh inning and allowed back-to-back singles to Scott and Huff to start the inning...was relieved by Ziegler who allowed both of the runs to score...then took the loss in a 3-2 decision at Baltimore on August 11...allowed a run in the second inning on a RBI groundout by Mora, but the A's scored single runs in the fourth and fifth innings to take a 2-1 lead...he then allowed two runs in the bottom of the fifth on a RBI single by Roberts and a RBI groundout by Jones.

WITH SACRAMENTO: Was 1-0 with a 1.04 ERA (8.2 ip, 7 h, 3 r, 1 er, 5 bb, 8 so) and .226 (7 for 31) opponents batting average in two starts with Sacramento...his opponents average included a .200 (2 for 10) mark against left-handed pitching and .238 (5 for 21) against right-handers...opponents were 1 for 12 (.083) with runners in scoring position.

Jackson enters his sixth season in the Majors looking to rebound from a 2009 campaign that saw him sidelined from May through the remainder of the season with Valley Fever...in 2008, established career-highs in nearly every offensive category and was the ninth-hardest player to strikeout in the league, fanning once every 10.03 plate appearances...was honored by the Arizona chapter of the BBWAA with the D-backs' Good Guy Award in a 2008 season that saw him split time between first base and leftfield...the D-backs' first-round pick in 2003, Jackson was named NL Player of the Week twice in 2008.

2009 HIGHLIGHTS

Played in 30 games prior to being diagnosed with Valley Fever, an ailment that cost him the rest of his season...hit a pinch-hit, three-run homer on April 14 against St. Louis, the third pinch blast of his career and first homer in 224 at-bats...hit his second career walk-off hit in the 12th inning of a 5-4 win on April 26 against San Francisco...placed on the 15-day disabled list May 12 with general illness, later diagnosed as Valley Fever...in an attempted comeback, played in three games for Single-A Visalia (0-for-10) before being shut down for the remainder of the season...following the season, played for Leones del Escogido in the Dominican Winter League...in 23 games, he hit .425 (31 for 73) with six doubles, two home runs, 16 RBI, 21 walks, and .561 on-base and .589 slugging percentages.

CAREER

2008—Established career-bests in nearly every offensive category including batting average (.300), games played (144), at-bats (540), runs (87), hits (162), doubles (31) and triples (6)...was the ninth-hardest player to strikeout in the National League, fanning once every 10.03 plate appearances...honored by the Arizona chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America with the D-backs' Good Guy Award...was also the D-backs nominee for the Hank Aaron Award, given annually to the overall offensive performer in each league...started at first base in 53 of the team's first 65 games before making his first start of the season in leftfield on June 11 at New York...went back-and-forth between making starts in left field and at first base (14 starts at first, 10 in left) during a 25-game span from June 11-July 8 before settling in as the starting leftfielder at Washington July 9...started 64 of the final 72 games in leftfield after Eric Byrnes missed the remainder of the season because of injury...earned NL Player of the Week honors twice; from April 14-20 after batting .480 (12 for 25) with 10 runs scored, two doubles, two triples, three home runs and 10 RBI and from July 21-27 after hitting .542 (13 for 24) with nine runs scored, two doubles, one triple, three home runs and seven RBI in seven games...got off to a hot start by batting .331 with 27 runs scored, six doubles, four triples, five home runs and 32 RBI in his first 37 games through May 14...almost hit for the cycle on April 18 vs. Padres and tied a career-best with four hits, four RBI and three runs scored...collected a triple, home run and a single prior to connecting on a smash to center field in the sixth inning that eluded the Padres' Jim Edmonds...instead of stopping at second for a double to complete the cycle, he raced to third base for his second triple of the game...it was the fourth time in D-backs history a player collected two triples...his 25 RBI in the first month of the season tied for second in D-backs history...also tied for second with 24 runs scored in the first month...had his second career walk-off hit on July 3 vs. Milwaukee, driving in two runs with a single to cap the D-backs 6-run comeback victory in the ninth inning (also had a walk-off single in the 10th inning on July 28, 2007 vs. Atlanta)...his season average peaked at .324 on July 27 after hitting .448 during a 13-game stretch from July 10-27...hit in a season-high 11 straight games from July 22-Aug. 2, batting .422 with five doubles, a triple, three home runs and eight RBI during that stretch...also collected multiple hits in a career-high five straight games from July 22-27 during the hitting streak...hit safely in 15 of his last

19 games of the season, batting .352 with five multi-hit games to raise his average six points and finish with a .300 average.

2007—Was the D-backs' Opening Day first baseman for the second straight year...hit a team-leading .308 after the All-Star break, collecting 15 doubles, 10 home runs and 34 RBI...his .555 slugging percentage and .371 on-base percentage ranked second on the team...strung together a season-high nine-game hitting streak from May 24-June 5, batting .417 with eight doubles, a home run and nine RBI...hit his second career pinch-hit home run on July 26 vs. Florida, a game-tying two-run shot in the seventh inning...on July 28 against Atlanta, he lined a 10th-inning single to score Chris Young and cap the D-backs third consecutive walk-off victory...put together a seven-game hitting streak from July 25-Aug. 1, batting .385 with four doubles, one home run and six RBI...made his first career appearance at third base on Aug. 14 at Florida...hit .125 (1 for 8) with a RBI in three NLDS games against Chicago...batted .333 (3 for 9) with a run scored and RBI in three NLCS games against Rockies.

2006—Entered the season ranked by Baseball America as the 17th-best prospect in baseball...hit .310 during August and .341 with seven doubles, three home runs and 17 RBI in September...had 38 multi-hit games, including nine in September...set a career-high with four RBI on April 25 at San Diego and again on Sept. 8 vs. St. Louis...had a 13-game hitting streak from April 2-May 13, hitting .345 with 11 RBI during that stretch...hit a game-winning pinch-hit homer in the ninth on July 30 at Houston...the homer was his first hit as a pinch hitter, having gone 0 for 17 to begin his career...hit .404 over his last 12 starts.

2005—Had a banner year with Triple-A Tucson as he was selected the starting first baseman for the PCL at the Triple-A All-Star Game (2 for 2, run, RBI, walk) and the USA Team at the All-Star Futures Game (0-for-2) in Detroit...entered the season ranked by Baseball America as the 40th-best prospect in baseball...chosen as the first baseman for the 2005 All-Pacific Coast League Team at the end of the season...finished second in the PCL with a .457 on-base percentage and fourth with a .354 batting average...named organizational Player of the Month for April after batting .385...reached base via a hit or walk in 86 of 93 games with Tucson, collecting at least one hit in 74 games...had 35 multi-hit affairs and 15 multi-RBI games...excelled with runners in scoring position, batting .398...had his contract selected by the D-backs July 28 and made his Major League debut that day at Chicago, popping out as a pinch-hitter...went 2 for 4 as the starting first baseman in his first big league start on July 30 at the Cubs, collecting his first hit with a second-inning single off of Rich Hill then propelling D-backs to a 3-2 win with a go-ahead, RBI double in the eighth...clubbed his first career home run in his first career multi-homer affair on Aug. 6 vs. Rockies, taking Jeff Francis deep twice.

2004—Posted a composite .324 batting average with 87 runs, 157 hits, 32 doubles, four triples, seven home runs, 91 RBI, 69 walks, a .406 on-base and .512 slugging percentages in 127 games...led D-backs' farmhands in hits, RBI and walks...recognized by Baseball America as a midseason High-Class A All-Star (Lancaster) and the California League's Best Batting Prospect...selected to the Minor League All-Star Second Team and the High-Class A All-Star Team at the end of the season...was the California League Player of the Week for May 10-16...ended his stay in Lancaster with a 19-game hitting streak from May 30-June 20 during which he hit at a .440 pace...selected to the California/Carolina League All-Star Game but was unable to participate due to a June 21 promotion to Double-A El Paso...participated in the All-Star Futures Game on July 11 in Houston and doubled and scored for the USA Team in their 4-3 triumph...following the season, played for the Scottsdale Scorpions in the Arizona Fall League...tied for the league lead in home runs (8), tied for third in runs (27) and tied for fourth in RBI (26), spanning 32 games...batted .324 with a .586 slugging percentage...earned Player of the Week honors for Oct. 18-23.

2003—Named the Northwest League's Most Valuable Player...selected to NWL Post-Season All-Star team and earned SportsTicker Star of Stars honors for overall statistical excellence...chosen as an outfielder on Baseball America's short-season All-Star team...established a league record with 35 doubles while also pacing the circuit with 60 RBI and 42 extra-base hits...also ranked second with 82 hits, 137 total bases and a .533 slugging percentage, third with a .319 average and tied for fourth with a .410 on-base percentage...clubbed his first professional home run on July 25 at Salem-Keiser...named Player of the Week for Aug. 4-10.

By Joe Stiglich, Oakland Tribune, 2/26/2010

Call Brett Anderson superstitious or ritualistic or a plain old creature of habit. Whatever the label, the A's left-hander won't dispute he's one of the major leagues' quirkiest characters.

Consider the pattern of behavior that marks every Anderson outing. He tosses the ball in his left hand a certain number of times before every pitch. While sitting in the dugout between innings, he drinks water from the same part of the cup with every sip, then makes sure the cup is placed in its proper spot next to him.

When Anderson leaves the clubhouse before a start, the label on the lip balm in his locker has to be facing out. He recently found out that Blistex stopped making the brand he likes, but that's a problem for another day.

"I've been doing this ever since high school," Anderson said. "It's evolved to different things. One thing I think will work, but one thing will go by the wayside. It's been ever-changing. But it's been ever since I started pitching competitively."

Then he smiles, clearly in tune with how amusing it all sounds. "I'm a weird guy."

But baseball is a game marked by habitual behavior. Many players avoid touching the baseline as they come on and off the field. Nomar Garciaparra, a teammate of Anderson's last season, rapidly readjusts his batting gloves after every pitch.

Anderson's teammates respect his idiosyncrasies but also find the humor in them. "Sometimes it takes him a while in between innings to get out there," right-hander Trevor Cahill said. "I think he's got to realize he's making the umpires mad. I'll be sitting next to him on the bench, and I always think they're looking at me. They're trying to get his attention to get out there. But I don't want to interrupt his routine."

Whatever works. Anderson, who turned 22 this month, led major league rookies last season with 150 strikeouts, an Oakland rookie record. He threw a two-hit shutout in his first start at Fenway Park and took a perfect game into the seventh inning against the Los Angeles Angels.

He said he strayed from his game-day routine for one start last season and promptly gave up seven runs in five innings against the Chicago White Sox. Anderson went back to it for his next outing and threw seven solid innings against the New York Yankees.

"Obviously you've gotta go with what's working," he said. The apple didn't fall far from the tree in the Anderson family. Brett's father, Frank, says he had his own habits as a player.

Frank Anderson, the Oklahoma State baseball coach, recalls attending a basketball camp in high school and listening to legendary coach Al McGuire talk about the importance of finding a routine at the free-throw line.

Frank applied the same philosophy to baseball.

“I wanted to get in the batter’s box the same way every time,” he said. “You don’t worry about the crowd, you focus on (yourself).”

The elder Anderson stopped short of calling Brett’s behavior superstitious.

“In baseball, you have to repeat an action so many times,” Frank Anderson said. “The more times you can do it, the ball is going to come off your hand right, or come off the bat right. We’re creatures of habit. Baseball kind of lends itself to that.”

But even he concedes his son’s behavior might be a little out there.

RIGHT-HANDED PITCHER

Height/Weight: 6-3 / 240 Bats/Throws: Right / Right
Birthdate: May 31, 1984 Opening Day Age: 25
Birthplace/Resides: Voorhees, New Jersey / Medford, New Jersey

Oakland Athletics' Andrew Bailey aims to 'stay the course'

By Joe Stiglich, Oakland Tribune, 4/19/2010

Being named the American League's Rookie of the Year was nice for Andrew Bailey. But it hardly did anything to change his personality.

Bailey is the same easygoing person he was last season, and the A's can only hope he's the same pitcher as well. But he has no surprises up his sleeve as he settles in for his second season as the team's closer.

"I think it's just kind of staying the course," Bailey said of his philosophy for 2010.

Who wouldn't aim for the status quo after posting the type of season Bailey did in 2009? He was the only rookie in either league to make the All-Star team and became the seventh Oakland player to be named the AL's top rookie.

No evidence exists that a sophomore jinx might apply for major league closers. Then again, not many relievers from recent seasons can be compared with Bailey, period, because few have assumed full-time closing duties as a rookie.

One exception was Huston Street, who took over as the A's closer in 2005 and was Rookie of the Year. He came back and saved 37 games in 2006, but he also had 11 blown saves.

Jonathan Papelbon notched 35 saves in 2006 for the Boston Red Sox in what officially was his rookie season. But Papelbon got his feet wet with 17 appearances in 2005 (14 in relief), so he's not a direct comparison to Bailey.

"There's always going to be bumps in the road (for young pitchers)," one major league scout said of Bailey's chances to repeat his rookie success. "But stuff is stuff. (Bailey's) got three pitches, and they're all plus-pitches. Last year he looked like one of the top five closers in the game. He took the ball and ran with it, and I don't see why he couldn't do it again."

Bailey posted 26 saves last season with a 1.84 ERA in 68 appearances. He didn't convert from starting to relieving until midway through the 2008 campaign, so his biggest challenge was simply conditioning his arm for frequent use.

Bailey missed two weeks this spring with elbow inflammation, which he has said was probably a byproduct of last season's heavy use.

So perhaps it's a good thing the A's have used Bailey only five times through the first 14 games. He's converted his only save opportunity.

Since joining the bullpen, Bailey said he's begun studying closers such as Papelbon and Mariano Rivera, whose New York Yankees begin a three-game series with the A's tonight. Bailey throws a mid-90's fastball, a slow curve and a cut fastball, and he marveled at Rivera's mastery of the cutter.

"I like Papelbon's aggressiveness, that's kind of the mentality I have," Bailey said. "And I love watching Mariano's kind of like, finesse, just spotting up with that cutter. It's unbelievable. He can put it where he wants it."

Bailey participated in several media engagements this winter. But baseball remained his focus, according to teammate Craig Breslow, who worked out with him regularly.

“Getting his work in and throwing, that kind of remained a priority,” Breslow said. “I was impressed with how level-headed and grounded he was.”

INFIELDER

Birthdate: August 16, 1985 Opening Day Age: 24
Birthplace/Resides: Springfield, Vermont / Corona, California
Major League Service: 1 year, 119 days
Obtained: Acquired from the St. Louis Cardinals with pitchers Kiko Calero and Dan Haren for pitcher Mark Mulder, December 18, 2004
Contract Status: First year of a one-year contract through 2010.

2010 HIGHLIGHTS

- Walked a Major League leading 22 times during the spring, the most walks by an Athletic since spring stats are first available in 1991...the previous best was 17 by Mark McGwire in 1991...then walked three times in the opener, April 5 at Seattle...that tied the Oakland Opening Day record set by Sal Bando in 1975 and matched by Barton in 2008.
- Drove in a career high four runs April 8 against Seattle.
- Fractured the volar plate in the middle finger of his right hand April 25 against Cleveland but did not miss any games.
- Snapped a career long 41-game homerless streak April 28 at Tampa Bay with his first home run since September 11, 2009...the home run also snapped a career long 16-game streak without an RBI dating back to April 9.
- Homered in the 11th inning May 11 at Texas and added the game-winning RBI single in the 13th... according to the Elias Sports Bureau, he is the first Athletic to have a RBI hit in two different extra inning at-bats in the same game since Harry Simpson did it for the Kansas City A's on June 12, 1956 in a 9-3, 15-inning win at Washington.
- Had a career high 11-game hitting streak from May 25 to June 4...hit .341(14 for 41) during the hitting streak.
- Hit safely in 15 consecutive road games from May 25 to June 16 (20 for 58, .345).

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Has spent parts of each of the last three seasons with Oakland and is a .249 career hitter in 212 games entering the 2010 season...batted .347 in 18 games with the A's in his Major League debut in 2007 but then hit .226 in 140 games in his first full season in 2008...set an Oakland record by reaching base safely via hit or walk in each of the first 20 games of his career...split his 2009 campaign between Oakland and Triple-A Sacramento...enters the 2010 season with a .293 batting average and a .408 on-base percentage in 545 career minor league games...was originally a first round draft pick of St. Louis in 2003 and spent two seasons in the Cardinals farm system as a catcher...was named to the Midwest League Postseason All-Star team at Single-A Peoria in 2004...was traded to the Oakland organization following the 2004 season in the Mark Mulder deal and was converted to first base...played for the United States team in the Futures Game July 10, 2005 at Comerica Park...missed most of the 2006 season after fracturing the radial head of his left elbow in a game against Iowa May 23.

2009 HIGHLIGHTS

After spending the entire 2008 season with the A's, Barton split 2009 between Triple-A Sacramento and Oakland...hit .261 with nine home runs and 48 RBI in 70 games with the River Cats and .269 with three home runs and 24 RBI in 54 games with the A's...was batting .147 with a home run and three RBI with Oakland when he was placed on the 15-day disabled list July 28 retroactive to July 27 with a strained left hamstring...hit .302 with two home runs and 21 RBI in 37 games following his return.

'It's time' - Barton reaching promise

Susan Slusser, Chronicle Staff Writer, 6-15-2010

Daric Barton is finally fulfilling the potential everyone believed he had when he first came up in the fall of 2007. He's consistent, he's reliable, he truly has become a team player.

At 24, he has grown up.

After two seasons of erratic results and lengthy slumps, how did this transformation take place? Did Barton change his approach at the plate? Tinker with his swing?

No, said Barton. The changes he made were in his life, and, for that, he credits a trip to the golf course during spring training and Casey Chavez, the A's bullpen catcher and Eric Chavez's younger brother.

"We'd started talking about things while we were playing golf one day, and the next week I was out on the golf course again, and I got a text message from Casey when I was on the 13th hole," the A's first baseman said. "He invited me to Bible study and it wasn't even a question in my mind. I was like, 'Yeah, I'll be there.' I didn't even finish the round.

"God showed himself through Casey. I got saved and that was a turning point for me, mentally and physically, knowing there's more to life than baseball."

Barton said he'd done a lot of thinking in the offseason and said he realized that he had forgotten who he was - he felt as if he was trying to be someone else, and he wasn't fulfilling his potential, either as a person or as a player. He knew something was missing, and it was just by sheer chance that Chavez started discussing faith with him that day on the golf course.

"It was so random," Chavez said. "Some coaches and I were just trying to fill out a foursome and Daric and I wound up sharing a cart. We weren't even talking that much, but one of the coaches was saying to me, 'So, you don't do this anymore? You don't do that anymore?' And I could tell Barty was paying attention. I said, 'Yeah, I don't go out anymore, I don't drink anymore, I'm happier than I've ever been.'

I knew Barty heard it.”

Barton said he found in the Bible study group the answers he was looking for. The others in the group shared stories of searching for more meaning, and finding it in the Bible rather than in nightlife and some of the other temptations of youth and of fame and riches. Barton hadn't ever been an out-of-control partier, but he's a fun-loving guy and he certainly had done his share of hitting the town on occasion. That has come to an end.

“I was probably going down a road I shouldn't,” Barton said. “Sometimes I was even playing better when I was going out every night. I was single, I was loving life, I went with the flow.

“I don't regret it at all, I had a lot of fun, but it's time - I'd played parts of three seasons and I hadn't established myself as a player. This has been my most important year. I really think I took what I had for granted - that's something I thought about this offseason. Because it's more than just about ability, it's about preparation and about off-field habits.”

Casey Chavez sees the changes that Barton's newfound faith has wrought in his personal life and in his professional life.

“He has such confidence about him,” Chavez said. “It's fun to watch someone who really enjoys what they're doing, and getting better at it.”

Barton said he was trying so hard to be something he wasn't that he'd lost some of his love for the game. Now he has focused anew on being the player he believes he is - he's not getting himself out early in the count as he was the past two seasons, something that was the result, he said, of being too worried about striking out.

He's also added another element to his game. Barton felt as if he was letting the team down too much the past two seasons by failing to move runners from second to third with nobody out. So this year he's bunting in those situations. He has nine sacrifice bunts already. No A's player had more than five all of last year, and the Oakland record is 22 (Dwayne Murphy, 1980).

None of Barton's bunts have been called. He said he's doing it on his own.

“It's not expected of me, but if there's an important run early in the game, I want to take advantage of it, get the momentum on our side,” he said. “It's pretty much ingrained in me, at all costs, get that runner over. And it's worked well.”

“That's Barty,” hitting coach Jim Skaalen said. “Team first, a professional in all areas.”

Barton said he wants to prove to the A's that they were right to have faith in him. He knows that he got extended time over the past two years to show his worth, even when he might not have deserved it. He said getting sent down to the minors last year was another big step in his maturation process.

“Baseball will humble you real fast,” he said. “They sent me down last year, and that was the best thing that ever could happen. The A's have given me every chance, and hopefully now I'm doing everything I can for them.”

2010 HIGHLIGHTS

- Struck out a career high 10 batters in his first start of the season, April 6 against Seattle.
- Allowed a career high 11 hits in a 4-2 loss to Texas May 3...matched that on May 30 at Detroit and June 9 against Los Angeles.
- Pitched the 19th of the 20 perfect games in Major League history May 9 against Tampa Bay (including Don Larsen's in the 1956 World Series)...it was the second by an Athletic and it came 42 years and one day after Catfish Hunter did it against Minnesota on May 8, 1968...according to the Elias Sports Bureau, he is the first pitcher to throw a perfect game against a team entering the day with the best record in the majors...it came in his 68th career appearance, which is third fewest among the 20 pitchers with a perfect game...he was named American League Player of the Week for his effort.
- His perfect game was the sixth no-hitter by an Oakland Athletic, the first since Dave Stewart on June 29, 1990 against Toronto...Braden's came at the age of 26 years, 269 days, making him the second oldest pitcher to toss a no-hitter in Oakland history (Stewart was 33 years, 130 days)...it was the 11th nine-inning no-hitter in Athletics history.
- Tossed 109 pitches in the perfect game, 77 for strikes.
- The perfect game was the first complete game of his career, snapping a career opening streak of 52 consecutive starts without a complete game...that is an Oakland record, topping the previous mark of 51 by Todd Van Poppel from September 11, 1991-September 12, 1995...it was the fourth longest streak at any point in Oakland history...in fact, had tossed fewer than eight innings in each of his first 52 starts, which was the longest streak of consecutive starts of fewer than eight innings in Oakland history.
- In his start after the perfect game on May 14 at Los Angeles, he retired the first two batters he faced to extend his consecutive batters retired streak to an Oakland record tying 29 (also Hunter, May 3-8, 1968)...the streak ended on a two-out double by Abreu in the first but he retired 11 straight after that for a stretch where he retired 40 of 41 hitters.
- Blanked the Angels on three hits over the first five innings to extend his scoreless streak to a career high 16.0 innings.
- Finished with a complete game seven-hitter but was the losing pitcher in the A's 4-0 loss...of the 16 perfect games since 1922, only Len Barker followed with another complete game and he also lost...Braden is the first A's pitcher to toss back-to-back complete games since Mark Mulder had three straight from May 9-21, 2004.
- Presented the Top Ten list on the Late Show with David Letterman on May 11, was a guest on the CBS Early Show on May 13 with his grandmother, Peggy Lindsey, was on the cover of Sports Illustrated and was on HBO's Real SportsWith Bryant Gumbel.
- His spikes and a game ball are already in the National Baseball Hall of Fame and he also plans to make donations to the Stockton Hall of Fame.
- Northern California Representatives Pete Stark (D-Fremont), Jerry McNerney (D-Stockton), and Barbara Lee (D-Oakland) have introduced H.Res. 1351, a resolution recognizing his perfect game on Sunday, May 9, and praising the Oakland Athletics organization and their fans.
- Was honored by the Athletics in a pre-game ceremony on May 21...was presented with home plate from the game and was given a ring with 27 diamonds around its base and 51 diamonds on its face...Oakland Mayor Ron Dellums proclaimed May 21 as Dallas Braden day in the city of Oakland.
- Was also honored in an on-field ceremony May 22 at the Stockton Ports game where Stockton Mayor Ann Johnston presented him with a key to the city and a proclamation.
- Left consecutive starts early on May 19 against Detroit (flu-like symptoms) and May 25 at Baltimore (sprained left ankle)...both times the problems were pre-existing conditions.

Steward: ‘Grandma Peggy’ gets the final word on A’s pitcher Dallas Braden, and on A-Rod

By Carl Steward, Oakland Tribune columnist, 5/10/2010

It wasn’t the perfect Mother’s Day story, because unfortunately, Dallas Braden’s mother wasn’t there to be part of it. She died in 2001 of cancer.

But with Peggy Lindsey in the Oakland Coliseum stands to exhort her grandson as he made history Sunday with baseball’s 19th perfect game, it was perhaps the next best thing to the perfect holiday-themed subplot. And an exceedingly touching one.

Just seconds after being mobbed by his teammates after retiring 27 consecutive Tampa Bay Rays, the A’s Braden made a beeline for the stands and embraced Grandma Peggy, who moments before had tried to jump the rail to get to Dallas but was restrained by security.

“He just said, ‘I love you,’” said Lindsey when they finally hooked up with the long hug that resonated nationally. “I said to him, ‘Your mom would be so proud,’ and I think that’s kind of what he was thinking, too.”

The scene was one of those heart-rending moments that almost superseded the accomplishment of the perfect game itself.

“When I saw him hugging his grandma, I was tearing up,” said catcher Landon Powell. “It was hard to fight ‘em back. He’s had a lot of things happen to him in his life, and even the last few years has had some unlucky things happen to him in the game of baseball. So that was special to see.”

Braden claimed it was his grandmother who turned his life around when he was a party-hearty Stockton teenager, steering him away from what might have become a career in the clink as opposed to one on a ball field.

Braden readily admits he was a bad seed throughout high school. He was booted off the baseball team twice, once as a freshman and again as a junior, because of grades and truancy. He said he once missed 79 days of school out of 81 during his junior year.

Then, at the beginning of his senior year, his mother, Jodie Atwood, was diagnosed with melanoma skin cancer. She died before he finished high school.

At that point, Braden was pretty much off-the-charts out of control in terms of what he wanted to do with his life.

“I was not doing what I should have been doing,” he said. “In fact, I was doing pretty much everything in my power to take every opportunity my mother and grandmother had given me and throw it away. But she wasn’t going to let that happen.”

Lindsey staged a one-on-one summit meeting in which she set her grandson straight.

“She just made it very clear to me that all the sacrifices that my mom had made and she had made and the life we had led up to that point were all to get me on a baseball field and to keep me out of jail,” he said. “She also made it abundantly clear that I was not headed to the baseball field and I was pointed to the other place.

“That’s when I kind of snapped my head around and realized that, yeah, I pretty much had one shot, and I need to jump on it.”

Braden has made good on that one shot by becoming a solid major league pitcher at age 26, despite the fact that he was a mere 24th-round draft pick by the A’s in 2004. Since debuting with a horrific 2007 season in which he was 1-8 with a 6.72 ERA, the left-hander has steadily gotten better and better, leading up to Sunday’s perfect storm of a pitching performance.

That he did it on Mother’s Day didn’t surprise his grandma, herself a bit of a card who, in talking about Braden’s controversial verbal battle with the Yankees’ Alex Rodriguez, said, “Let’s forget it ... and stick it, A-Rod!”

When Eric Chavez heard the comment, he nearly doubled over with laughter.

“The apple doesn’t fall far from the tree, eh?” Chavez said.

Apparently not. Showing where Braden gets his knack for flavorful quotes, Lindsey reeled off a few herself in the postgame interview session, above and beyond the A-Rod zinger.

“Leave it to Dal to do something different, huh?” she said. “If you know Dal, then you know that’s his way.”

Asked when she started to get nervous about her grandson, she quipped, “About the seventh ... or about when he was 5 years old. Tee-Ball was really the beginning of it all.”

When Braden was growing up in Stockton, he lived with both his mother and his grandmother, and the family barely made ends meet. Now, with Dallas owning his own house, she still lives a mere five blocks away and they have dinner together frequently. She even baby-sits his dog Diesel while he’s on the road.

She never misses a home game when he pitches, and is usually surrounded by a large circle of vocal friends. She also makes a number of his road trips.

In short, Braden admitted that in the wake of his mother’s death, his grandmother was his savior. But he still has trouble with Mother’s Day, because it brings back painful memories.

“During the game, before the game, the night before the game,” he said. “It hasn’t been a joyous day for me in a while. But to know that I still get to come out and compete and play a game on that day, that makes it a little better. With my grandma in the stands, it makes it a lot better.”

It made it an unforgettable day for a lot of people who witnessed one of the rarest of baseball achievements. Dallas delivered perfect pitching, and then Grandma followed up with the perfect postscript.

Stick it, A-Rod. Beautiful.

Braden's perfect game is something special

Susan Slusser, Chronicle Staff Writer, 5/10/2010

When A's pitcher Dallas Braden took the mound Sunday in Oakland, only 18 players in the history of Major League Baseball had thrown a perfect game - no hits, no walks, no errors, not a single batter reaching first base.

Now the number is 19. Braden did it Sunday. A proud son of Stockton, he retired all 27 Tampa Bay Rays he faced.

The timing was incredible. Braden, 26, made baseball history on Mother's Day, which has always been a difficult time for him. His mother, Jodie Atwood, died of cancer when he was in high school, and he was raised by his grandmother, Peggy Lindsey.

"It hasn't been a joyous day for me in a while," Braden said. "To know that I can still come out and compete and play in a game on that day makes it a little better, and with my grandma in the stands - to give her this, together, is perfect."

That was the right word for Sunday, and Lindsey was on hand for her grandson's extraordinary accomplishment. Afterward, Braden gave her a huge hug.

"It's very special," Lindsey said. "Dall and I are very close. He just said, 'I love you,' and I said, 'Your mom would have been so proud.' I think that's what he was thinking, too."

Braden's teammates celebrated his feat, but they, too, understood the moment went beyond sports.

"When we first finished the game and celebrated and I saw Dallas hugging his grandmother, I was tearing up," A's catcher Landon Powell said. "He's had a lot of things happen in his life, even in the last couple of years in the game of baseball, and it couldn't happen to someone who deserves it more."

Braden is only the second pitcher in A's franchise history to achieve such a feat, following Jim "Catfish" Hunter's perfect game on May 8, 1968, against the Minnesota Twins.

"There have not been that many of them," Braden said. "That's pretty special. I don't know what to think yet. That's some very select company."

And Braden's victims, the Rays, are no pushovers. They have the best record in the majors this season.

To add to all of that, Sunday was also the day that Braden launched his "Section 209" program, providing discounted tickets for the seating area that bears the same number as his hometown's area code.

"Leave it to Dall to do something different," Lindsey said.

Braden is a true left-handed free spirit - he has a tiny handlebar mustache tattooed on the side of a finger so he can hold it up to his lip - but he's also got an extra edge thanks to his experience growing up in a particularly rough area of Stockton. He has said that many of his childhood friends are in jail, and he might be there himself were it not for baseball.

He still lives in Stockton, and he is dedicated to the city. He advertises that fact with his warm-up music, which mentions his hometown, and his clothing, which usually bears a "209" label somewhere.

Last week, however, a 209 reference got Braden in trouble.

Until Sunday, Braden was best known nationally for his spat with Yankees superstar Alex Rodriguez - better known as A-Rod, one of the sport's greatest players and one whom many fans love to hate.

In an interview with Comcast SportsNet, Braden said, "We don't do too much talking in the 209," when asked about how he would respond if Rodriguez ever showed any disrespect to him.

That was seen in New York as a veiled physical threat toward Rodriguez, and Braden was ripped in the media for revisiting his dispute with Rodriguez two weeks after the fact.

When the Yankees were at the Coliseum on April 22, Braden objected strenuously when Rodriguez took a shortcut across the pitcher's mound after a foul ball. He screamed at Rodriguez from across the infield and said afterward that Rodriguez had broken an unwritten rule of baseball. He suggested there would be repercussions if Rodriguez tried that again.

Rodriguez said that he'd never heard of such a rule and that he found it funny that a pitcher with "a handful of wins" would make such a fuss.

On Sunday, Rodriguez, speaking to reporters before the Yankees' game in Boston, had only praise for Braden. Asked about Braden's perfect game, Rodriguez said, "I've learned in my career it is much better to be recognized for all the great things you do on the field. Good for him, he threw a perfect game. And better yet, he beat the Rays."

Braden downplayed the Rodriguez angle Sunday, and well he should, considering the magnitude of his performance. Most of his teammates stayed away from the topic, too.

"The way things unfolded, the bigger story is with his mom and with his grandmother," said the A's longest serving player, Eric Chavez. "The headline is the special day with his grandmother."

But the fact is that for the national media, Braden's pitching feat will be a great excuse to replay the drama of a little-known A's player's war of words with perhaps baseball's most famous player.

His grandmother at first agreed with Chavez that it's time to move past the Rodriguez business.

"I'm thinking, 'Let's forget it, let's forget it,'" Lindsey said.

But then she paused and said, "Stick it, A-Rod."

Before Braden got the win, grandma got the save

Scott Ostler, Chronicle Staff Writer, 5/10/2010

Some guys are stumped for gift ideas on Mother's Day. Not Dallas Braden. He gave his grandma a perfect game Sunday, then a long hug that had media guys in the press box sniffing and complaining about all that damn pollen in the air.

There's something about a perfect game that unleashes a ton of emotion at a ballpark, from the fans, the players, everyone involved. All that emotion was intensified by who Braden is, what he's been through in life, what he's been through recently.

After he perfect-gamed the Rays at the Coliseum, Braden found his grandmother and bear-hugged her as she sobbed on his shoulder. This is the woman who saved Braden's life not many years ago by kicking his scroungy behind when he desperately needed it kicked.

The party was on, and it was hard not to get pulled into it.

The spunky kid from Stockton seems to have a lot of friends on the A's ballclub, and the clubhouse was a beehive of hugs and happy vibes.

"I guess this goes on all of our records," joked A's general manager Billy Beane, checking out the festive clubhouse mood. "It's like, 'I was there for the perfect game.' We all get credit for it, right?"

Sure, and Beane gets credit for drafting Braden. Sort of. I asked Beane if, during the 2004 draft, he was concerned about Braden's history of being a serious knucklehead.

"Not really," Beane said. "When you draft a guy in the 15th round ..."

Actually it was the 24th round. A general manager can safely draft his mailman's nephew in the 24th round in lieu of a holiday tip.

Had the A's background-checked Braden, Beane would have drafted his mailman's nephew. Many athletes tend to exaggerate the lackluster behavior of their youth, but Braden hits you with facts.

"I only played (baseball) two years in high school," Braden said. "I didn't make my grades my freshman and junior years. ... I missed 79 of 81 days of school the first quarter of my junior year."

What turned it around for Braden?

"My grandmother made it very clear that all the sacrifices my mother and she made were to get me on the baseball field and keep me out of jail," Braden said. "She let me know I was headed the wrong way."

Dallas' dad was always out of the picture. His mother was ill and died of cancer when he was a high school senior. Even when mom was alive, grandma was the hammer.

"She was the rock of Gibraltar on the get-go anyway," Braden said. "She's been the driving force behind everything that I've done in my life and career. Her sacrifices are countless."

Braden's not the kind of guy to leave his past behind. He still lives in Stockton. He said he would donate his perfect-game mementos- game ball, jersey, whatever - to the Hall of Fame ... the Stockton Hall of Fame.

Raising the question, "Stockton has a Hall of Fame?" It does now.

And the case could be made that Stockton is home to the most famous player in baseball right now. Braden became an instant cult hero among big-league pitchers by barking at Alex Rodriguez when A-Rod clomped rudely across Braden's mound.

If you saw Braden's reaction to Rodriguez's faux pas, you got a sense of the intensity of the A's pitcher, the volatile emotion he carries around. Sunday he channeled all that intensity into his craft, with dramatic results.

Then he turned all the emotion to his teammates, the fans - including a sizable group of homies from Stockton- and grandma, Peggy Lindsey.

Dallas isn't Lindsey's only grandchild, but the others didn't live close by.

"I was her baby," Braden said.

But grandma didn't baby him. She would occasionally whip his rear end.

"We don't do much talking in Stockton," Braden said.

He kept trying to mess up his life, but grandma kept fighting him, and Peggy won by a TKO. Braden stopped acting the fool, finished high school, went to JC, got signed.

Now he's winning games and getting discovered - for his guts, his pitching, his heart.

Lindsey managed a hotel in Stockton. Hard work. When Braden got his first big-league paycheck, his eyes bugged out and he told grandma to turn in her master key. "You're done."

In the clubhouse, Braden said he would celebrate his perfecto by driving home to Stockton and firing up the grill for a Mother's Day barbecue. He said he would not be watching a replay of his amazing performance.

"It's done; it's over," Braden said. "We got Texas to worry about."

Perfect in pink! Mother's Day A+ for Braden A's lefty lost mother to cancer as senior in high school

By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 5-10-2010

OAKLAND -- Dallas Braden's life has been anything but perfect.

Crime, gangs and poverty swarmed his childhood surroundings in Stockton, Calif., where he was raised by a single mother, Jodie Atwood. Heartache topped those already grim circumstances when Jodie died of skin cancer while Braden was a senior in high school.

But on Sunday afternoon the Oakland lefty, making the 53rd start of his career, retired all 27 Tampa Bay batters in succession to record just the 19th perfect game in Major League history, a 4-0 A's victory.

Braden's grandmother, Peggy Lindsey, has guided him through his struggles. And just as she does every time her grandson takes the mound in Oakland, she made the hour-long drive from Stockton on Sunday afternoon, this time to witness Braden pitch against the team with the best record in baseball.

Thus, the 26-year-old kid took to the bump against the Rays as Peggy watched her grandson's imperfect life suddenly become perfect for just a day -- a day that happened to be Mother's Day.

"It's a more important day for my grandmother than anything," Braden said. "That's the biggest thing to be able to give her something like this on a day of this magnitude, considering everything we've been through together. It's more about her for me.

"It hasn't been a joyous day for me in a while. But to know that I still get to come out and compete and play a game on that day, that makes it a little better. With my grandma in the stands, that makes it a lot better. To be able to give her this today was perfect."

It was, in every sense of the word. The two embraced in tears, exchanging a handful of words in between moments of tender silence. After all, not a whole lot really needed to be said.

"He just said, 'I love you,'" said Lindsey, wearing an A's fleece and still very much in disbelief.

Braden needed just 109 pitches (77 strikes) to retire the Rays' 27 batters, six of whom struck out against the Oakland southpaw in his first career complete game. He entered the game averaging 1.70 walks per nine innings, but he was also coming off consecutive losses in which he yielded a combined nine runs through 11 innings.

None of it mattered Sunday, though, as Braden left 12,228 fans in Oakland cheering from their feet for more than 20 minutes following the final out, a grounder to shortstop Cliff Pennington off the bat of Gabe Kapler that made its way to first baseman Daric Barton.

"I told him, 'Your mom would be so proud,'" Lindsey said. "Leave it to Dal to do something different. If you know Dal, then you know that's his way."

The only other pitcher in A's history to toss a perfect game was Catfish Hunter, who did so on May 8, 1968, against Minnesota. The last no-hitter in A's franchise history came on June 29, 1990, when Dave Stewart accomplished the feat.

The A's now join the White Sox, Yankees and Indians as the only clubs to have thrown more than one perfect game. Braden's, in one way, tops all the others: No one has thrown even a no-hitter against a team with a winning percentage as high as Tampa Bay's .733 mark coming into the game.

"It was a great day, Dallas was phenomenal," A's general manager Billy Beane said. "Really, the thing about it is if you're going to pitch a perfect game, that's a team over there that you wouldn't want to choose to try and do it against. They have great plate discipline, speed, everything. So it makes it even more special and quite an accomplishment."

Braden understood his place in history.

"There are not that many of them," said Braden, who was drafted by the A's in the 24th round in 2004. "It's pretty special. I don't really know what to think of it yet. It's kind of new. It's still kind of very fresh to me. It's some very select company. Also, those guys -- if you look at the body of work those other 18 individuals put together -- that's something I'd like to have a little more than just one day. So there's definitely more to do."

Still, Braden's accomplishments on Sunday were enough to leave the baseball community talking about the Stockton kid for quite some time. He greeted 17 of the 27 batters he faced with first-pitch strikes -- a facet of his game in which he's always prided himself since he isn't equipped with "dominant stuff."

"That's the key to me ever having success," he said. "I'm not going to blow anything by anybody. I'm not going to dominate a lineup, if you will. I just need them to not square it up. It's a formidable lineup over there to try to flip over."

It's also one that entered the three-game set against the A's with baseball's best record, which made Sunday's performance all the more incredible for everyone involved.

"I was on the wrong end of one last year, so it's a heck of a lot better being on this end of things," said Gabe Gross, who was with the Rays when Chicago's Mark Buehrle tossed baseball's last perfect game, against Tampa Bay last August.

The Rays are the second team to be victimized by two straight perfect games. The Reds' Tom Browning threw the 12th perfect game in Major League history against the Dodgers in September 1988, and the Expos' Dennis Martinez followed with the 13th perfect game, also against the Dodgers, in July 1991.

"It's awesome," said A's outfielder Eric Patterson, who made two crucial plays that involved what Braden deemed "absolute missiles." "Obviously, it's happened 19 times in history so it's not like it happens every day. Being part of it and being in the game when it happened was definitely something special. It's a big win for us. A win at home is huge, especially against a team of that caliber."

Patterson wasn't the only one who gave Braden a hand in achieving perfection. Kevin Kouzmanoff, who set a National League single-season record for third basemen with a .990 fielding percentage last season, knocked down the first out of the game by reaching high and wide for a line drive from Jason

Bartlett. He also ran at full speed into Oakland's dugout to record the second out of the eighth inning.

"Kouzmanoff, again, stole my thunder," Braden said, "by making sweet plays over by the dugout. I always tease Kouz. I say he tends to play things into web gems, but I think that one was a straight-up decent play."

Aside from a handful of hard-hit balls that turned into outs, Braden essentially put Tampa Bay's lineup to rest without much hassle. He endured a 12-pitch battle with Kapler in the sixth and watched one of those balls land just outside the left-field foul pole before he finally got the Rays' right fielder to pop out to Kouzmanoff. Not too many other batters gave him such trouble; he ran up a three-ball count to just four hitters.

"Dallas has four great pitches -- above-average pitches," said catcher Landon Powell, who also contributed to the historic win with two hits and the first RBI of the game. "Obviously, his screwball or changeup -- whatever you want to call it -- is his out pitch. But he does a real good job of locating his fastball in and out. Today, the biggest thing was he was locating his fastball in and in off the plate, which really kept hitters from leaning out over, which really made the changeup even better.

"The only time that guys can usually hit that changeup is when they're cheating and they're leaning over the plate, and he didn't let them do that today by throwing his fastball in."

Meanwhile, Oakland's dugout and bullpen filled with nothing but silence. The same type of atmosphere was found around Lindsey, who didn't let any friends sitting by her say a word after she realized what was transpiring in the seventh inning.

"That's when I started to get nervous," she said. "Or about when he was 5 years old."

Less than an hour later, she found herself climbing over the dugout wall to grab a hold of Braden, who wouldn't have chosen to share the moment with anyone else.

"My grandmother just made it very clear to me that all the sacrifices my mom had made and that she had made and the life that we had led up 'til that point was all to get me on the baseball field and to keep me out of jail," he said. "And she made it very abundantly clear that I was not headed to the baseball field, that I was headed to the other place. That's when I kind of snapped my head around and said, 'You know what? Yeah, I pretty much got one shot if I'm going to have any shot, and I need to jump on it.'"

"Now we understand what it takes to make a sacrifice, and now I have an even better appreciation for being able to just give my grandma this."

Checking in with Braden's peeps in 209

Gwen Knapp, Chronicle Staff Writer, 5/11/2010

Tom Stubbs tuned to the local newscast Sunday night to learn more about Dallas Braden's perfect game and heard that the lefthander had some unusual plans for the historic items from the day. With no disrespect intended to Cooperstown, Braden wanted prime memorabilia to go to the Stockton Athletic Hall of Fame.

"I about fell out of my chair," said Stubbs, treasurer of the Stockton museum, currently in transit from a modest location at a public school to a grander spot in the Stockton Arena. "I don't even think (the A's) know how to find us."

They'll figure it out.

One of the balls used Sunday was sent to Cooperstown on Monday, team spokesman Bob Rose said, along with the spikes Braden wore during the 19th major-league perfect game. Eventually, according to his grandmother, Peggy Lindsey, and Rose, some combination of Braden's glove, cap and jersey will go to the smaller museum in his beloved hometown.

In the past, he has shown his devotion with endless charitable work in the city, with a tattoo of the area code "209," and on Sunday, discount seats for the "209 section." At the same time, he made 4-0 winners of the A's and turned Mother's Day into a transcendent tribute to his grandmother and to the mom he lost to cancer. But he also lifted Stockton into another realm, momentarily transforming the city - cited last year by Forbes magazine as America's most miserable - into a cradle of perfection.

"People talk about the foreclosures and unemployment and the crime, and that's all true," said Frank Wanner, Braden's coach at Stagg High School. "But Dallas and what he's accomplished represent Stockton, too. There's a lot to be proud of here."

Wanner choked up as he talked about the perfect game and its significance on Mother's Day. The coach said he hasn't remained close to the family, aside from sending occasional e-mails to Lindsey. But he remembers seeing Braden, then a high school senior, on the day he lost his mother, Jodie Atwood, to skin cancer. Wanner took him out for a motorcycle ride, lunch and a talk. A few hours later, Braden's mom was gone.

"I saw them when they were in the valley of despair," the coach said, his voice breaking. "And ... I have to get my composure. I really am very happy for him."

All over the city Sunday, different people felt poignancy, tension and elation. "In Stockton, there aren't six degrees of separation, there's only one degree of separation," said Todd Bowman, one of Braden's closest friends. He watched the game on TV with his brother.

In another part of town, Jimboy Rabanal followed the game during a Mother's Day party at a cousin-in-law's house. Friends with Braden since junior high, Rabanal found his eyes welling up in about the seventh inning. His wife, Kim, wasn't sure what was happening, he said. "I have really bad allergies, and she was asking me if I was OK."

She also knew that Mother's Day was fraught with emotion for him. At age 16, a few years before Braden's mom died, Rabanal lost his mother suddenly to a brain aneurysm. On Sunday morning, Rabanal went to a local cemetery to place flowers on the graves of his mother and grandmother. Then he visited another woman's grave, leaving a bouquet there, and sent a text to her son that said: "Thinking of you today."

He didn't explain where he was at the time. He would tell his friend later, when they were wrapped in each other's arms at Braden's Stockton house, celebrating baseball history and something more personal. "I visited Jodie today," Rabanal remembers saying, "and I took her some flowers."

Braden had a few stops to make on his Stockton celebration tour. He lives about five blocks from his grandmother, and they went to a neighbor's place together, ordered some pizza and savored the day, she said. Before that, he had dropped by a younger friend's house on the other side of town.

David Rowse, a senior pitcher at the University of the Pacific, had become something of a protégé to Braden in recent years. The school's coach, former major-league infielder Ed Sprague, had welcomed Braden to train on the Stockton campus in his free time. Invariably, Sprague said, Braden would stick around well past his workout, chatting with the players, even umpiring intra-squad games.

The UOP team played at UC Davis on Sunday and heard about the perfect game just as it started a three-run ninth inning to finish off a victory. Afterward, Rowse contacted Braden, and the newest member of the sports pantheon promised to stop off on his way home to visit the Stockton house Rowse shares with two teammates. Braden is too easygoing to engender any awe himself, but the moment left the collegian overwhelmed.

"Someone who just made major-league history was there, kickin' it in my living room," Rowse said. "It's something I'll tell my grandchildren about."

The next day, Lindsey relived the exhilaration of her grandson's perfect game in countless interviews. She visited friends up in the special seats, on a different level than the place she always occupies, where most people know to call her "Gran." She also remembers climbing over the top of the dugout after the game, trying to reach her beckoning grandson as a nervous security guard hollered: "Ma'am, get down, get down."

Then another voice identified her, and the security people took her safely through one of the gates onto the field. "I wasn't even thinking," she said, when asked how she had planned to get off the dugout roof.

She didn't put in a request for any of her grandson's memorabilia.

But for Mother's Day, Braden always gives her one of the pink bats that his teammates use for breast-cancer awareness games. She wanted one from Daric Barton this year, and she said she was pestering her grandson for it even as he flew off to Texas, amid a flurry of interviews.

"He keeps saying, 'you'll get it, you'll get it,'" she said, clearly enjoying the fact that, like Braden himself, she could focus on other players during her family's hours of superstardom.

However, a certain third baseman for the Yankees is out of the picture. Like her grandson, she is done verbally sparring with the celebrity athlete. He has no place in the best chapter of the happiest story in baseball this year. He's not from Stockton.

Baseball marvels at Braden's perfect game Players moved by left-hander's Mother's Day gem

By Alden Gonzalez / MLB.com / 5-11-2010

Dallas Braden will no longer be known simply as the guy who told Alex Rodriguez to stay away from the pitcher's mound.

Thanks to 27 consecutive outs on a magical Mother's Day in Oakland, the obscure-yet-brash left-hander from nearby Stockton, Calif., -- "The 209," as he refers to his old stomping grounds -- made sheer perfection his newest claim to fame.

Not many non-A's fans knew much about Braden -- he of 17 wins in four seasons heading into his Sunday afternoon start -- until he lashed out at A-Rod for breaking what he deemed an unwritten rule of baseball on April 22. But after A's shortstop Cliff Pennington gobbled up Gabe Kapler's ninth-inning grounder, thus securing the 19th perfect game in Major League history, it's safe to assume Braden will be granted much more than his 15 minutes of fame.

In fact, 24 hours later, Braden's perfect game, and all that came with it, was still the talk around baseball on Monday -- and that may not go away any time soon.

"I got a little choked up last night after that last out when his grandma came out on the field," said Blue Jays lefty Dana Eveland, who played with Braden the previous two seasons in Oakland, where the two California products developed a strong friendship.

"I texted him last night to say, 'Congratulations.' Then I sent him another one this morning saying, 'Are you alive?' Because I figured last night was probably a pretty good party in Stockton. He's alive. I saw him on TV this morning."

After retiring all 27 Rays batters in order -- six via the strikeout -- Braden exuberantly paced around the mound he previously agreed was his island with a frozen fist pump before being embraced by ecstatic teammates.

"That's cool," Rangers starter Rich Harden, a teammate of Braden's with the A's from 2007-08, said Sunday. "I'm happy for the guy. He's got some great stuff."

Then, as he walked toward the dugout, he pointed up at the stands for his grandmother, Peggy Lindsey -- the one who cared for Braden after his mom passed away when he was a teenager -- and the two shared a long, emotional embrace.

"They were always really, really close, so that was really cool," Eveland said. "I'm really happy for him."

Rockies right-hander Ubaldo Jimenez doesn't know Braden, but now they have a kinship as the only two pitchers to hurl no-hitters this season.

Jimenez threw the season's first no-no on April 17 against the Braves. On Sunday, Jimenez had borderline no-hit stuff when he held the Dodgers to one run on two hits in seven innings, but took his first loss of the season, 2-0, in Los Angeles. When he entered the Dodger Stadium visitors' clubhouse, he saw the report that Braden had just thrown a perfect game in a 4-0 win over Tampa Bay.

"It's great to see somebody else doing it, especially a perfect game -- he's been blessed," Jimenez said. "It's not easy to have one of those."

"It's not even easy to throw three or four innings without a hit. Anyone can get a hit, even a pitcher, and they don't have a pitcher hitting. Like I said, God wanted you to have one of those."

Pitching in front of 12,228 fans at the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum, Braden needed 109 pitches (77 of which were strikes) to hurl the first perfect game since Mark Buehrle did it against those same Rays on July 23 of last year, and the first in A's history since Catfish Hunter on May 8, 1968.

"I feel good about my no-hitter, but a perfect game, there is nothing like that," said Marlins starter Anibal Sanchez, who hurled a no-no as a rookie in '06. "That's being perfect. No walks. I'm proud for him."

Braden -- 4-2 with a 3.33 ERA in seven starts this season -- isn't necessarily equipped with what baseball experts would call dominant stuff, but he relied on an inside fastball, deceiving changeup and great control for his gem on Sunday, as he started off 17 of the 27 hitters he faced with first-pitch strikes.

"He has to really pitch to do something that special," said Brewers third-base coach Brad Fischer, who was in his final season as the A's bullpen coach when Braden arrived in the Majors in '07. "He's not just going to go out and blow them away. The fact he put a whole game together like that is very impressive."

Fischer admitted that "some alarms went off" when he first met Braden and saw "209" scribbled on his cleats, but he eventually learned that "he's a good kid."

It didn't take very long for him to realize he's a tough one, too.

"I don't think there was ever any doubt about his makeup," Fischer said. "He's a tough kid. He was never fearful, and I think that works to his benefit. I'm happy for him. They're never going to be able to take that away."

Even his former teammate, Dodgers outfielder Andre Ethier, who played with Braden in the A's organization at Double-A Midland took note of his makeup.

"I remember him as a wild guy, full of energy, and every time he pitched he got the job done. He competed and you could count on him pitching a good game."

After it was all said and done, the 26-year-old called the pinnacle of his young Major League career "pretty cool" and "pretty special."

Yeah, no kidding.

"To see the madness that has ensued since, it's surreal," said Marlins reliever Dan Meyer, a former A's pitcher who roomed with Braden at Triple-A and in the big leagues, even staying at his grandmother's house one time. "I heard he did the 'Today Show.' I'm proud of him. Not only was he a teammate, he's a real good friend of mine. To accomplish something that has only been done 19 times in the history of Major League Baseball, it's amazing."

The Brewers found out about Braden's performance when it flashed on the scoreboard at Chase Field on Sunday. Then, after that game, catcher Gregg Zaun was made aware of Braden's story -- how his mother, Jodie Atwood, died of skin cancer when he was a senior in high school and his grandmother singlehandedly put him on the right path -- and had a typical reaction.

"Stunning," Zaun said. "What a great story. I saw it up there on the scoreboard, and he pumped his fist, and then I saw, 'Perfect game.' It's like, 'Whoa.'"

Dallas Braden: Mouth That Roared (Perfectly)

By TYLER KEPNER, New York Times, 5/12/2010

ARLINGTON, Tex. — The Class A Stockton Ports opened a new ballpark in 2005, but the players still parked at the old one. The day of the first practice, Daric Barton and Richie Robnett, both first-round draft picks, rolled into the old lot and dropped off their cars: a Tahoe for Barton, a Range Rover with 24-inch rims for Robnett.

The next day, their new teammate Dallas Braden, a lanky left-hander, approached them and asked if the cars did, indeed, belong to them. Warily, Barton said yes.

"Well, it's a good thing that I'm here, because a couple of my buddies came up to me asking whose cars they were, because they wanted to steal them,” Braden replied. “I told them not to, because they were your guys’.”

And that, Barton said, was his first impression of Braden: make sure you stay on his good side, or his buddies from Stockton may steal your car.

Five years later, the scene shifted to the Oakland Coliseum, about 70 miles west of Stockton. There were two outs in the bottom of the ninth inning Sunday, and Braden, now pitching for the parent club, the Athletics, had retired all 26 Tampa Bay hitters.

The count was 3-1 to Gabe Kapler, but Braden did not realize it; he thought his 2-1 fastball had clipped the outside corner for a strike. The catcher, Landon Powell, called for a fastball, and Braden delivered one at 87 miles per hour. Kapler bounced to shortstop Cliff Pennington, and at first base, Barton’s mind flooded with details.

“The first thing was get to the bag,” he said. “The second thing was make sure you catch the ball. But my legs were shaking, my eyes were jumping all over the place, and I was nervous. I wanted to celebrate before I got the ball. It was tough to just stay there. Once I caught the ball and held onto that sucker, then it was all celebration and happiness.”

Braden caught the ball and charged toward Braden, wrapping him in an embrace. Powell and Pennington, also first-round picks, joined the celebration. Braden had just authored the 19th perfect game in major league history, an underdog defying the odds again.

“His name will be synonymous with it for as long as we live, as long as our kids live, as long as anybody’s around,” said Todd Steverson, the Athletics’ first-base coach, who managed Braden in Stockton. “He’s etched his name in there, and you can’t take it away from him.”

As the party unfolded on the field, the television cameras panned to Section 209 at the Coliseum, in the second deck behind first base. The seats there were sold at a discount, the section number a nod to the Stockton area code that is tattooed across Braden’s chest.

Down on the field, Braden embraced his grandmother Peggy Lindsey, who raised him after his mother, Jodie Atwood, died of cancer when Braden was a senior in high school. Just that morning, on Mother’s Day, his childhood friend Jimboy Rabanal had placed flowers at Atwood’s grave.

“Jodie wanted nothing more in the world than for Dallas to play baseball,” Rabanal said. “He slept in his car a few times in the parking lot at the ballpark. His mom wanted it so much for him, he felt obligated to make it happen.”

The dream seemed unrealistic. The other six pitchers who have started for the A’s this season were drafted in the eighth round or higher. Braden was taken in the 24th round in 2004, 727th over all, out of Texas Tech.

Braden had played the previous two seasons at American River College in California, so he was not well known. Other pitchers from Texas — Homer Bailey, Yovani Gallardo, Jeff Niemann — attracted more scouts that spring. With a fastball that never crept above 88 m.p.h., Braden was widely ignored.

Blake Davis, then an area scout for the Athletics, saw Braden pitch early that spring, but it was not a memorable impression. Later, though, Davis found himself staying at the same hotel as the Texas Tech team, and he talked to some of the players. All of them raved about Braden’s makeup, calling him the leader of the team. Davis was intrigued.

“He was a 21-year-old man as far as taking care of himself and knowing what was in front of him,” Davis said. “He had seen some of the worst. There was nothing in pro ball that was going to scare him.”

As a prospect, Braden did have an excellent changeup, and what he lacked in velocity, he made up for with a fearless approach, challenging hitters with inside fastballs.

Davis thought he might make a useful reliever and asked Braden if other teams had contacted him. Braden said no.

Such honesty stood out to Davis; most players said they were coveted by many teams, to improve their draft position.

Braden, who had no agent, told Davis to take him in the first 24 rounds, and he would sign. Davis trusted Braden, took him in the 24th round and signed him for $15,000.

The Athletics offered to pay for Braden’s final year of college someday, but Braden asked that the money be rolled into his bonus instead.

Ever since he was 4, he said, he had no doubt he would make the majors.

“That was the game plan,” Braden said Tuesday at a news conference at Rangers Ballpark. “It was either that or asking you if you wanted to supersize that. I stuck with this.”

The A’s put Braden in the bullpen at first, but that did not last long. He pitched well in 2004 and 2005, missed most of the next year with shoulder trouble, but was in the majors by April 2007. He went 5-4 in 2008 and started on opening day last season.

“The reason was that we knew he could handle that responsibility,” Oakland General Manager Billy Beane said. “He wouldn’t be overwhelmed by the opportunity. With some of the other guys, we felt they would be.”

This season has been Braden’s breakthrough, as a pitcher and a talker. Just 18 days before his perfect game, he famously criticized the Yankees’ Alex Rodriguez for crossing over the mound — his mound — after a foul ball.

Now, after one perfect day, Braden is known for his pitching. That is how he wants it. That is how he got out of Stockton, even though he never really left.

“I guess A-Rod said it best: it’s good to be noticed and recognized for things you do on the field,” Braden said.

“That’s always a positive. I guess that’s why I live in Stockton, because I can go home and be me there, and I’m not really worried about what anybody else thinks.”

Braden finds the perfect place to store his gear

By Jason Anderson, Stockton Record, 5/27/2010

The good people at the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y., can have the shoes from his feet, but Dallas Braden wants Stockton to have the shirt off his back.

The Oakland Athletics pitcher reiterated Saturday shortly before being presented with a key to the city that he plans to donate much of the memorabilia from his perfect game to the Stockton Athletic Hall of Fame.

The A’s already sent Braden’s cleats and a baseball from his Mother’s Day gem to Cooperstown, but the Stockton resident and Stagg High graduate wants other items such as his jersey, hat and glove displayed in his hometown.

Asked how his new place in Cooperstown and all the national acclaim compared to the adulation he received during Saturday’s pregame ceremony at Stockton Ballpark, the 26-year-old left-hander stayed true to his roots.

“It doesn’t,” he said. “That’s why my stuff’s going to our hall. This is where I come from. This is something we’re going to share together. The entire nation got to take part, but this is where I come from and this is the place I want to pay my respects to. (Cooperstown) got my cleats, and that’s something I am very honored to have in the Hall of Fame, but this is where my heart is.”

Gary Scott, the former Delta College athletic director who in April replaced Ray Brudernich as executive director of the Stockton Athletic Hall of Fame, was stunned when he learned of Braden’s wishes.

“My feeling was numbness,” Scott said. “I was kind of in disbelief.”

The Stockton Athletic Hall of Fame exhibit is moving from its former home at El Dorado Elementary School to a more prominent location at Stockton Arena. The exhibit features pictures of Pacific football legends Amos Alonzo Stagg, Eddie LeBaron and Dick Bass, as well as signed mementos from championship high school teams, but the display soon will have a new centerpiece.

“It will be an honor to receive these things from Dallas,” said Tom Stubbs, former Pacific baseball coach and treasurer of the Stockton Athletic Hall of Fame. “We’re very proud of him, and when we get the memorabilia we’re going to put it in a special place in our new home at the arena.”

Braden becomes both student and teacher

A's lefty moonlights as pitching mentor for college team

By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 02-22-2010

PHOENIX -- When it came time for Ed Sprague to decide on a rotation for his team's season-opening series this weekend, the University of Pacific baseball coach called up a good friend for some advice.

Dallas Braden happened to be on the other end of that phone conversation. Sprague listened carefully to a pal 16 years his junior.

"I asked him who he likes of our guys, and we were pretty much on the same page," Sprague said. "We were pretty close, and I ended up going with the guys he chose."

Turns out the kid knows his stuff, as the Tigers enjoyed a 2-1 weekend against the University of San Francisco in their first regular-season games since being under the tutorage of Braden, who still makes his home in the university's location of Stockton, Calif.

Both Braden and Sprague went to high school in Stockton. Both have played for the A's -- Sprague in 1998 during a 11-year professional career. Yet neither knew of the other until 2006 when Braden asked Sprague if he could practice on the university's fields during the offseason.

In four short years, the 26-year-old A's left-hander has since transformed from an average Minor League pitcher bouncing back and forth from the bullpen to the rotation into a bona fide big league starter. Oh, and don't forget the college interim pitching coach stint on his resume, which Sprague proudly endorses.

"It seems like just yesterday he started asking if he could come out and play catch at our field," the Tigers coach said. "Ever since, he's come out every offseason to work out. This year he came out more, and our guys started watching him play catch and asking him questions.

"He ended up staying three or four hours and would watch them in the bullpen. It was great."

For Braden, making friends comes as easily as throwing strikes thanks to a contagiously inviting and witty personality, so before long, the A's pitcher was welcoming the college players into his home.

"I took some guys under my wing and had them come over to the house," he said. "They were asking me how to prepare, and I have DVDs in my office of all the games I've thrown, so I showed them and talked about approach. It was fun because I feel like the more you talk about that stuff the more you can actually learn."

Braden can only hope he can act out his own lessons this year as he returns from a season in which he was shut down after only 22 starts. His bizarre injuries coincidentally match his quirky personality -- for no rhyme or reason, other than maybe to allow the baseball gods to hear Braden interactively tell tales of his wacky body.

Take his deviated septum, for instance. Braden underwent a nasal endoscopy in December because of the resulting breathing and sleeping problems -- an operation that led to what he described as a "water-fall" of blood over his grandma's sink when he attempted to remove a cotton ball just days later.

"I was steadily flowing blood out of my face for the first few days," he said in a humorous nonchalant manner. "I can now breathe -- figuratively and literally."

On top of that, Braden still feels lingering effects from the nerve irritation that developed last year in his foot and has no feeling in two of his toes. The foot issues began midseason when his ankle suffered an allergic reaction to a neoprene brace he'd been wearing, which subsequently led to inflammation in the area where his foot meets his ankle.

"I don't know if it affects me," Braden said of the numb toes. "Sometimes I'll get a little too far on the back side of my foot and I'm not really sure how far I'm back there just because sensory isn't there. There's no motor sensory damage, which means my muscles are firing and I can feel that, which is awesome. But just to touch it, there's not much going on there.

"They said it could take six months, six years, or it could never come back. We just don't know."

Braden does know, though, that he's "right where I need to be" on the Spring Training schedule.

"I've thrown some bullpens and have no limitations really," said the southpaw, who is scheduled to throw a bullpen session Monday. "I'm running and doing everything that's required of a guy in camp.

"I was ready for this Aug. 5, which was about two days after I realized I wasn't going to pitch again. I even called [pitching coach] Curt Young and told him after the first day I threw a baseball I almost cried because I was just so excited that I could actually throw a baseball and I was ready to go. I started playing catch in late November or early December because I wanted that feeling. I wanted to know I was still a baseball player."

No matter where Braden's health leads him this year or the next, Sprague believes the A's pitcher will be a mainstay in the game thanks to a maturity the coach has watched progress during Braden's time in Stockton.

"I think he's definitely got a gift for coaching," Sprague said. "He did a very good job of relaying stuff on the coaching level. I definitely think he'll have a long career in baseball, especially after he's done playing."

For now, though, Braden hopes to stay busy on the mound in an effort to turn some of the Giants fans present on Pacific's baseball team into followers of the green and gold.

"I don't know if we've converted all of them," said Sprague, "but we've certainly turned them all into Dallas Braden fans."

Story by Douglas Flynn

The Wall Street Journal once labeled him “the smartest man in baseball, if not the entire world,” and the presence of a degree in molecular biophysics and biochemistry from Yale University would appear to support the claim.

Craig Breslow chuckles at the moniker that has stuck with him through eight seasons of professional baseball. But the Trumbull, Conn., native certainly was smart enough to realize his future on the diamond was in serious question when the Milwaukee Brewers, who had picked him in the 26th round of the 2002 draft, unceremoniously released him two years later during the 2004 season.

“When you’re released as a 23-year-old after being a 26th-round draft pick, you’d have to be pretty foolish if you didn’t have some serious doubts [about making it],” Breslow said. “I was really close to giving up on baseball. I felt like toiling in the minors for years when I had this great educational background wouldn’t have made much sense.”

For once, Breslow went with his heart instead of his brain. Rather than returning to school to pursue the medical degree that always has been his goal, Breslow gave baseball one more shot. He hooked on with the New Jersey Jackals in the independent Northeast League for the rest of 2004, then was signed by San Diego out of a tryout camp the following year.

His major league debut came with the Padres on July 23, 2005, and while there’s been some more bumps along the way as he was non-tendered by San Diego and waived by three other teams, he enters the 2010 season having established himself as one of the top left-handed relievers in the majors.

“Going into this year, hopefully I have established a role for myself now,” Breslow, now 29, said. “I’ll never be complacent, but I think I’ve proven myself a bit now.”

Breslow had some success in his various stops. He had a 3.75 ERA and 12 strikeouts in 12 innings with the Red Sox in 2006 and a 1.91 ERA in 47 innings split between Cleveland and Minnesota in 2008. But it wasn’t until he was claimed off waivers by Oakland on May 20, 2009, that everything really came together for him.

Breslow finished the year second in the American League in appearances with 77, including 60 with the A’s. He went 7-5 in Oakland with a 2.60 ERA and 44 K’s against just 18 walks in 55¹/₈ innings. Long considered a lefty specialist, Breslow finally was given a chance to get hitters from both sides of the plate out, and actually had more success against righties (.191 opponents’ average) than lefties (.204) last year.

“I like to think I can do more than just get lefties out,” Breslow said. “I think if you look at my splits I’ve had pretty similar numbers against righties as I have against lefties.”

The A’s certainly are glad Breslow put off med school and stuck with baseball. So are a lot of people away from the diamond.

As much as he has contributed on the field, Breslow has proven even more valuable off it with his tireless charity work for pediatric cancer research and treatment. Breslow has a very personal reason for such efforts, as his older sister Lesley was diagnosed with pediatric thyroid cancer when she was 13 and Breslow was 11. Lesley Breslow has been in remission for over 15 years, but that harrowing experience was enough to make Breslow want to do everything in his power to prevent any other families from going through the same ordeal.

“That had a dramatic impact on my life,” Breslow said. “A couple of years ago, I was playing for the Red Sox at the time, and I felt it was as good a time as ever to do something.”

For many players, “doing something” would mean donating some money and maybe making a few appearances to raise more funds. That wasn’t enough for Breslow, who instead chose to launch his own organization, The Strike 3 Foundation (www.strike3foundation.org).

“The control freak I am, I knew I had to do my own thing and not just be a spokesman for an existing charity and show up at a few events,” Breslow said. “I like the autonomy of being able to allocate the revenue where I see fit. ... I think there’s some value in being more than just some athlete or celebrity lending their name to some cause.”

Breslow’s work, which includes an annual gala each November (this past year’s featured Nomar Garciaparra as a speaker and a performance by reggae star Shaggy, while NHL star and fellow Trumbull native Chris Drury of the New York Rangers has helped out at other events), already has raised $215,000 and distributed more than $160,000 in its first 2½ years despite the rough economic times.

“If you told me two years ago that the economy was going to be in its biggest downtown in 80 years, I probably would have said this isn’t a good time to be asking for charity dollars,” said Breslow, who spent nights during a past spring training filling out paperwork to register the foundation as a charity with the IRS.

While many charities raise money for support services for cancer patients and their families, Breslow’s focus strictly is on research and treatment.

“I figure if you eliminate the disease, you eliminate the need for counseling for family members and all of those type of support services,” Breslow explained. “If you have no cancer, then you don’t have to find a way to ever tell a kid that he has cancer. That’s my goal.”

Breslow may have an even more direct impact on cancer treatment in the future, as he hasn’t ruled out going back to med school after baseball. He just hopes that won’t be a decision he has to make for quite some time.

“It’s definitely something I think about,” Breslow said. “I’m enjoying what I’m doing now. I’d love to be doing this for another 12 years, so I don’t know where that would leave me, but I definitely think about it.”

In the meantime, he’ll have to satisfy his intellectual itch in other ways — such as settling bets for old teammates. One such occasion came in 2007, when he was called upon to solve a pressing issue in the Red Sox clubhouse. Somehow, Josh Beckett and Doug Mirabelli got caught up in a debate over how many times a ball thrown at 95 mph would make a full revolution between the mound and the plate. Naturally, the only person they knew who could solve the problem was Breslow.

“I was in Pawtucket and Josh left me an urgent message that I had to help him out,” Breslow recalled. “I think it ended up being about 12.4 [rotations]. I’m not sure who won the bet, but I did my part.”

Maybe solving that dilemma is why Breslow received a World Series ring in 2007 despite not facing a single batter with the big club. He was called up on Sept. 1 but sent back to Pawtucket the next day without having pitched in Boston.

He’s done a lot more in Oakland, but his reputation as an Ivy League science wiz still precedes him.

“Breslow knows everything,” A’s starter Dallas Braden told MLB.com last year. “I seriously want to be Craig Breslow when I grow up. He knows things most baseball players wouldn’t even try to think about. ... I’m not saying we’re all a bunch of rockheads, but if we were, he’d know how to build some kind of laser to break up the rocks and turn them into something way cooler.”

Thus, Breslow’s claim as baseball’s smartest man lives on, much to his amusement.

“I take my share of ribbing for it, players give me a hard time,” Breslow said. “But when I think about the nicknames that are out there, being called the world’s smartest man, I’ll gladly take that.

“I’m regarded as an expert no matter what the subject is,” Breslow added. “Even if I don’t know anything about it, whatever I say is treated like gospel, which is pretty amusing to me.”

2010 CLIPSChavez doesn't just swing bats, he makes them

Susan Slusser, Chronicle Staff Writer. 3/14/2010

Phoenix - -- Eric Chavez always takes a keen interest in bats. The A's infielder likes to design his own, choosing the wood, the handle, providing all the specifics. He enjoys watching the manufacturing process, too.

"I love it," he said. "It's the coolest thing."

Now, Chavez can head to his own bat company to see his bats produced. He is a primary investor in a venture called Diego Bats, after Chavez's oldest son, and it's the real deal: The company is churning out major-league certified bats used by Oakland's Mark Ellis and Kurt Suzuki, among others.

"It's good, because it's Eric's company, so I can always tell him what's going on - and I know since he's here, it's always going to be the best stuff," Suzuki said. "He sent me some this offseason, I tried them and I like them - the quality I'm looking for is there."

Chavez is working with a friend, Andy Goulder, who is managing the enterprise. Goulder is also involved with Diablo Bats, which is not major-league certified but produces lumber used in wood-bat leagues and by many junior college programs.

Jermaine Dye and Eric Munson - friends and former teammates of Chavez's - are also investors. They helped Diego Bats gain certification, an expensive process that includes $10,000 in fees and $10 million worth of liability insurance.

“It’s not something I’m doing to make money,” said Chavez, who is in the final year of a six-year, $66 million contract. “It’s not a real moneymaker. But it’s fun to have my son’s name on a bat, and we’ll see how it goes.”

Chavez has found that his new sidelight comes with challenges, some of them less than appealing. Just three days after the decision to call the company Diego Bats, someone purchased the domain name diegobats.com and has tried to get Chavez to pony up for the site.

Chavez, whose company can be found at diegobats.us, said he had no interest in buying the name, and the domain owner constructed what appears to be (but is not) a “Diego Bats” company site. The site features some scantily clad women and some comments that are in questionable taste.

“It’s pretty bad,” Chavez said. “But my lawyers have looked at it and said there’s nothing we can do about it.”

“I wish I knew who it was,” Goulder said. “It’s just not fair to Eric.”

Otherwise, the project is a blast, and the company is looking to expand its client base; it might have one in Arizona pitcher Dan Haren, another former A’s player, who said Friday in Tucson that he’s planning to order some bats from Chavez.

Ellis is providing some good free advertising. He’s 6-for-13 this spring, and he’s pounding out those hits with Diego Bats.

“That’s what I’m swinging,” he said with a grin. “They’re doing a good job.”

Chavez would take a close interest in bat trends, anyway, but now that it’s his business, he’s paying even more attention. When there were renewed calls to look at banning or restricting the use of maple bats in the major leagues again this week, Chavez decided he’d move back toward using ash bats - and he suggested that Diego Bats follow suit. (They presently craft yellow birch, maple and ash bats.)

“I told Andy to make sure there is a good amount of ash, because I don’t know what baseball is going to do,” Chavez said. “Maple bats are breaking like crazy.”

Chavez gets a kick out of designing his own bats “to a T,” he said, but the personal connection is what’s most important to him. His bat model is DDC - Diego, Dolce, Cruz, the names of his three children.

What does Diego, 4, think of having his name affixed to a bat company?

“He doesn’t really know,” Chavez said with a laugh. “He’s so spoiled, he doesn’t know the difference. But maybe one day he can look back and say, ‘That’s pretty cool.’”

Ellis remains constant amid A's changes

Veteran second baseman embracing role as club leader

By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 03-16-2010

PHOENIX -- Mark Ellis still sports the same boyish look he brought with him to the A's clubhouse upon his arrival in 2002.

It was that same year during which the 25-year-old kid, traded along with Johnny Damon from Kansas City a year before, made his Major League debut. It was also that same year former Oakland outfielder David Justice lent him a warning.

"My first week in the big leagues, he told me, 'One day you're going to look up and 12 years will have gone by,'" Ellis recalled. "It hasn't been 12, but it's been close, and it's all gone by so fast."

Also gone are plenty of teammates who have walked through Oakland's revolving door. Yet Ellis, aside from the often-injured Eric Chavez, has remained the team's lone steady presence through it all. An average career batting mark, a top-notch glove and decent power have made for quite the bargain for the A's, who are paying Ellis $5.5 million -- the most he's ever made -- this season.

He's been on first-place teams, last-place teams and every team in between. He's racked up the most games played by an Oakland second baseman (846) and has led the American League in fielding more than once.

However, you won't see Ellis' name on a Gold Glove Award. Perhaps it is East Coast bias and batting average theories that have left the A's second baseman in the dust every season. Anyone in the A's clubhouse will say he is one of the most underrated defensive players in the game, but they'll also say he's one of the most respected.

That, said A's bench coach Tye Waller, comes from Ellis' ability to be a student, teacher, teammate and friend all at once.

"Back when I came up," said Waller, "you were always being tutored by the leaders on the club. Now guys come and go every one or two years, but because Mark has been here so long and has had the success he's had with the A's, the others can look up to him as a guy who knows what it takes to be successful here. He has the respect of everyone on this club."

Said reverence comes with time. And Ellis knows he's put in that time. In fact, the A's veteran currently represents the team's oldest player at the ripe age of 32.

"When you think about it," said a smiling Chavez, "that doesn't just make him the oldest player here, but that makes him the oldest player in the organization.

"I don't want that title. I'm glad he has it."

Ellis wears the title well, though. And he can't help but laugh when thinking of how many times Chavez -- who is just six months younger -- has reminded him of it.

Only Chavez, who made his debut for the A's in 1998, has been with the team longer than Ellis. But the six-time Gold Glove third baseman has played in only 121 games during the past three seasons while Ellis has appeared in 372.

His presence at second base, which was missing during the 2004 season due to a dislocated right shoulder, has now become one of the only sure things in Oakland, where players are constantly on the move. On Monday, he noticed former A's shortstop Orlando Cabrera's name in the Reds lineup and on Wednesday, he'll face former teammate Barry Zito before catching up with ex-A's pitcher Dan Haren when the Diamondbacks come to town Thursday.

Call it the norm, he says.

"It's nice to be able to still see all these guys," Ellis said, "but it's a little strange. There's times when it's really tough, because you've been with these guys and they're not only teammates but friends. At the same time, you get to meet new people and build new relationships pretty easily here.

"I think in a perfect world everyone would have their nine guys out there who they'd like to play with every year, but that's just how baseball is. It's how it is throughout the league and probably a little more here, but it's the way it goes."

Ellis is in the final year of a two-year contract but has a club option for 2011. And even though everyone around him in Oakland is seemingly getting younger, he wouldn't mind getting older while playing alongside them. He became a free agent following the 2008 season but never really bothered looking elsewhere.

"I love it here," Ellis said. "I obviously went through the same deal with my contract a couple years ago and chose to stay here. We're very comfortable here. It's a great place, and the team is moving in the right direction. That's ideal for me."

An extension is also ideal for his family. Young kids Briggs and Adelaide have only ever known the Bay Area, and Ellis and his wife, Sarah, relish the opportunity to visit the same doctors and grocery stores while also staying connected to the same neighbors and friends.

"I try not to think about it too much," Ellis said. "But if that time to leave here ever comes, whether through retirement or going to a different team, that's going to be tough."

The boyish look may gradually disappear in the coming years, but Ellis insists that no matter his age or location, his constant love and dedication for the game will always join him for the ride.

"I just want to stay on the field and play as many games as I can and win as many games as I can," he said. "Nothing in this game is guaranteed."

Nothing, says Waller, except Ellis' daily work ethic.

"Mark, from Day 1, has brought a sense of professionalism," he said. "The way he goes about his work, how he interacts with the team, it's a special thing. He pours so much into his teammates, and he's always there with that leadership that can bring these guys to another level."

Gross' goal: Produce fully in limited time

Susan Slusser, Chronicle Staff Writer, 3/23/2010

Sometimes, Gabe Gross wonders how he might have fared if he'd stuck with football. The onetime Auburn quarterback gave up that sport in his sophomore season to concentrate on baseball, and he doesn't second-guess the decision - how could he? He has a career in major-league baseball. He does think, however, about what type of quarterback he might have been with another year or two of experience.

"I came in as a true freshman and played two thirds of that season, and I did a lot of the stupid things true freshmen do, made a lot of mistakes - I didn't have a clue what I was doing," said Gross, who went from a simple high-school offense to a complex Terry Bowden offense. "Then I hung football up my sophomore year; I wasn't starting and I had to make a decision about which sport to focus on.

"I don't regret it at all, but I'd love to see where I would have been as a junior or senior if I'd stayed and learned some things. I do think about that once in a while."

On the baseball field, Gross might have similar questions: What type of player might he be with regular playing time?

The A's new outfielder hasn't been an everyday player, really. Sure, now and then he gets a stretch of extended time when a starting outfielder goes down, but really, Gross, 30, has been a bench player in the big leagues.

That's fairly unusual, because reserves tend to be older players on the down side of their careers; young players often don't handle part-time play well. Yet, since he came to the majors at the age of 24, Gross has not had more than 345 at-bats in a season; in fact, it's usually more like 200 at-bats.

"When you have to do something, you find a way; it's sink or swim in that role," said Gross, who cited Tampa Bay coach George Hendrick as a major help in learning to succeed as a part-timer.

"I've had some success coming off the bench, but I always feel like I could have done a lot better. I haven't been satisfied at all with the way I've produced in the at-bats I've had. Some of that is me, and some of that is never getting regular at-bats."

Throughout his career, Gross has had a big leg kick as part of his swing. Any exaggerated motions or extra moving parts are hard to keep fine-tuned without regular at-bats, and Gross was finding it ever more difficult to be consistent with his timing device sometimes on, sometimes off.

"It was kind of self-defeating," he said. "I fought it for several years, I tried to keep with it, because when things went well with the leg kick, they went really well. But when they went bad, they went really, really bad. It hit me straight in the face that I needed to change. Being really stubborn, it took me four years to do it."

So this offseason, Gross began to try to minimize the kick. Now, it's more like a small step instead of a big kick, and his swing is simpler.

“No matter what you do to load (the swing), if you’re not getting consistent at-bats, it’s hard to maintain,” said A’s hitting coach Jim Skaalen, who also worked with Gross in Milwaukee. “Smaller movements are easier to maintain, and he’s adding some rhythm to his stride.”

It appears to be working. Gross is 13-for-36 (.361), and he has a team-high 11 RBIs while playing all over the outfield.

A knack for driving in runs should assure Gross of plenty of at-bats, but he’d still like to be in the lineup on a regular basis, even if he realizes that the starting outfield of Coco Crisp, Rajai Davis and Ryan Sweeney might make that difficult.

“I hold out hope that in some way, shape or form, I’ll get everyday play sometime,” Gross said. “But as long as this is my role, I’ll embrace it.”

Kouzmanoff uses blue-collar attitude on field

Third baseman works for everything, as taught by dad
 By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 6-15-2010

OAKLAND -- Kevin Kouzmanoff is rather shy. Always has been. His father, Marc, not so much. He's a salesman. Always has been. One hits baseballs for a living. The other hits up tax professionals as a sales rep for a software company. Yet both go about their jobs, and life in general, singing the same tune -- one that emits sounds of patience, dedication, and persistence. "He works for a company that has a quota every month, and he has to make that quota," Kevin said. "Once you make the quota, you have another quota to make the next month. It's kind of like out here. You hit a home run to win the game, and that's great. But you have to come to the park the next day, and no one cares what you did yesterday."

Yesterdays, particularly bumpy yesterdays, don't mean much to Kevin. This A's third baseman, acquired by Oakland via an offseason trade, very much lives in the present, where -- thanks to dad -- he's got it pretty good.

"If I have a rough day out here, I call him and say, 'Dad, it was a bad day today,'" Kevin says. "And he says, 'I can send you one of my tax guides if you want to read one of my books, and you can do what I do.' And I think, no, that's alright."

"It makes me take a step back and realize a rough day here is still a pretty good day." "Here" is the ballpark, a place Marc never quite pictured his son working. "Here" is where Kevin pursued his profession, after high school stints with wrestling (in the 103-pound club), golf, and football. "Here" is where Kevin once struggled as a prep athlete at Colorado's Evergreen High School.

"He didn't make all-conference in what was probably the weakest conference in all of Colorado," Marc recalled. "He didn't receive any scholarships."

That's because Kevin was still implementing a swing, created by way of a three-year process -- one that had him, his father, and a carpenter studying baseball swings three hours a day, every day. The carpenter was Troy Slinkard, who made a hobby of learning swings en route to becoming Kevin's unofficial hitting coach -- the same one who still works with the infielder in a warehouse every offseason.

Meanwhile, Kevin's defensive game blossomed, not on the field, but outside of his cul-de-sac home, where brothers Brant and Ky would join him for a nightly round of 100 groundballs hit by their father. In 2009, Kevin set a National League record with a .990 fielding percentage, committing just three errors for the Padres -- much to the astonishment of Marc, who admittedly never imagined his son playing in the big leagues.

"I'm very surprised," he said. "Making it in Major League Baseball is so extremely difficult. I try to figure it out, and think what makes these guys successful. With football, you can toss a guy a football and know within two minutes if he can play football -- same with basketball and hockey. But not with baseball. You have to watch them and watch them.

"I never thought he'd be a Major League Baseball player. Our goal was never to play Major League Baseball. And I always tell kids, never make that your goal because it probably won't happen. Your goal should be one thing: to get the chance to do it, to get drafted. Kevin's goal was to get drafted, not to make it to the Majors. We never discussed that. Although when we talked, I knew it was on his mind."

So what happens after then, after the Draft? After the Indians select you, as they did Kevin, in the sixth round in 2003, following stints at three colleges? What's the goal?

"Move to the next level," Marc said. "You take it one step at a time."

Each level, no matter the rank, has seen Kevin go through his same routine:

Take ground balls -- lots of them. Take batting practice. Play the game. Hit the weight room. Rest. Sleep. Repeat.

"I devote my time and effort into what's important now, and then I relax," Kevin said. "I think I get it from both sets of parents. My dad was always up early on the computer making phone calls, finishing work at 11 at night. I saw his work ethic and thought that, in order to be successful, you have to work hard at it."

Marc and his wife, Kim, weren't necessarily tough on their three boys, all two years apart, and now ranging in age from 26-30 -- Kevin the middle child at 28 years old. Rather, they "just let us know what our priorities were," Kevin said.

Those priorities were met with the knowledge that nothing ever comes easy, at least in the Kouzmanoff household.

"Some kids are born with talent," Kevin said. "My family wasn't like that. We had to work at it. We were born with what God gave us, but we had to work for what we have, and improve upon that."

"When Kevin takes reps and practices, there's never a time when he moves a muscle without intent," Marc said. "So he doesn't just go out and hack the ball. When he goes out and takes batting practice, he's working on something -- things you've never heard of in any of the books. Everything Kevin does, even when he throws a baseball and plays catch, it's with intent."

The relaxing part, then, comes in the form of nature. Kevin's just as much an outdoorsman as he is a baseball player. He camps. He fishes. Much of his offseason is surrounded by trees and wilderness, elements that ultimately influenced his family to make the move to Colorado from San Diego, where Kevin lived until he was 12.

The same people who guided 12-year-old Kevin along are still very much a part of this 28-year-old baseball player's life. That much was evident a couple of years ago in Chicago, where Kouzmanoff -- still with the Indians -- stood on a chair, peeking out over the dugout, following the game, looking for one person.

"We went back there, where my mother lives," Marc remembers, "and a bunch of us were there waiting for him. He looks out at my mother, a little old lady at 80 years old, and says, 'Hey gran, how are you?' He made her feel so good because he recognized her.

"He's a good guy. Kevin is one of the finest. He's so genuine."

He's also unconventional in the way he goes about the game, and the route he took to make it to the largest stage. But that's OK, insists Marc.

"Kevin has never been a standout baseball player," his father said. "All these years, even though he was trying to be, and was trained to be, he never was. Kevin trains more than the entire team he's on combined. Kevin gives anyone hope that wants to make it."

Making it is something Marc never achieved for himself. Following his years in Montana, he played with the Chicago Bears during training camp, but didn't pass the final cut. Now, he -- along with Kevin, Brant, and Ky -- are sure to say that his role as a father has turned out to be all the more rewarding.

And baseball, not football, has made it a pretty fun ride.

"Baseball is the greatest sport in the world, because it's the only sport that is family oriented," Marc said. "You can play catch with your mom, your dad, your sister, your grandfather, your cousin. It's the only sport you can do that."

"He's been very supportive, along with my mom and my brothers," Kevin said. "I talk to him a couple times a week. I have a good support network. They sacrificed a lot. When we were younger, there were a lot of vacations we didn't go on because we had baseball tournaments."

Those trips brought the Kouzmanoff family to places such as Oklahoma City, Albuquerque, and eventually, Arlington, where Kevin made his Major League debut when Travis Hafner went down with an injury.

"When he got called up," Marc said, "my reaction was concern and performance. I wanted him to do well, no matter what level. I didn't think, 'Oh, you made it. Great, let's celebrate.' I just thought, 'All right, Kevin, here we go. Now we gotta go to work.'"

Marc is still preaching those words to son Kevin. And Kevin is still taking them to heart.

"His mental foundation is absolutely perfect," Marc says. "I don't know how he got that."

Anyone acquainted with the Kouzmanoff family, however, knows exactly where it came from.

Persistence has paid off for Kouzmanoff

By Joe Stiglich/Bay Area News Group. 3/7/10

PHOENIX — To understand Kevin Kouzmanoff's blue-collar approach to baseball, you must understand the unlikely path he blazed to the major leagues.

The A's new third baseman hardly was a can't-miss prospect coming out of Evergreen (Colo.) High School. He held no aspirations of playing after high school until a summer league coach offered a late invitation to join his team.

Then he bounced around three colleges before the Cleveland Indians drafted him in the sixth round in 2003.

"He was never the best player on his team," Kouzmanoff's father, Marc, said. "He was never that stud that anyone looked at and said he's a future major league baseball player. But he was persistent."

Now that Kouzmanoff, 28, has established himself in the big leagues, there's hardly anything "big league" about him. He returns to Evergreen every winter to work with his hitting guru, a friend who's a carpenter by trade and has no formal background in coaching. And, as his name swirled in trade rumors this winter, Kouzmanoff escaped by working in an auto shop surrounded by mechanics who had no idea he was a ballplayer until he told them.

Kouzmanoff has brought that workmanlike manner to the A's since being obtained in a Jan. 16 trade from the San Diego Padres. Kouzmanoff has called on infield coach Mike Gallego frequently because he loves taking extra grounders.

"If it takes staying late or coming in early, I'm all about it because I have to take enough reps to feel like I'm prepared to play the game," Kouzmanoff said.

That dedication was apparent at an early age, Marc Kouzmanoff said. But Kevin didn't generate much buzz as a high school player. While playing on the summer league team after graduation, he caught the attention of the coaching staff at Cochise College, a junior college located in Douglas, Ariz.

He played two years at Cochise and earned a scholarship to Arkansas-Little Rock. Realizing that scouts weren't flocking to games there, Kouzmanoff was granted a release from his scholarship and transferred to Nevada. There, he blossomed into the Western Athletic Conference Player of the Year in

But even while he starred at Nevada, major league scouts were skeptical.

“There are certain players you see right away that excite you with their tools package,” said Indians scout Don Lyle, who signed Kouzmanoff. “Guys like Kouzmanoff are subtle and have to come to you eventually. The more you watch him, the more you see things that you like.”

Kouzmanoff’s arrival in the major leagues with Cleveland in 2006 wasn’t subtle. He hit a grand slam off Texas’ Edinson Volquez on the first pitch of his first at-bat — the first player ever to do so.

“Our whole family was on SportsCenter for a week,” Marc Kouzmanoff said.

Kouzmanoff was traded to San Diego before the 2007 season and averaged 20 homers and 82 RBI over the past three seasons.

No one knows Kouzmanoff’s swing better than Troy Slinkard, his unofficial hitting coach since Kouzmanoff was 19. Slinkard is a carpenter whose hobby is studying baseball swings. Marc Kouzmanoff estimates Slinkard owns video footage of 500-600 major leaguers and has had Kouzmanoff watch film of himself to compare it to some of the game’s top hitters.

“We just started hitting baseballs in his driveway,” Kouzmanoff said. “It’s not rocket science. He’s just a coach. We’re on the same page and same level. I understand him and he understands me.”

Kouzmanoff is expected to provide middle-of-the-order pop for a team that hit the fewest homers (135) in the American League in 2009.

“I was surprised to come over to Oakland just because I didn’t hear that they were one of the teams interested,” Kouzmanoff said. “They’re a West Coast team, a good young team. So I was excited to come here.”

Utility man, who is out of options, looking to prove his worth

By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 3-24-2010

PHOENIX -- Eric Patterson likes to separate himself from all things baseball once the offseason begins.

His brother, not so much.

So when the A's were bringing in utility guys left and right over the winter, including the likes of Adam Rosales and Gabe Gross, Patterson stayed away from the news.

His brother, not so much.

"My brother probably gives me more updates than I need," Patterson said, "but I try during the offseason to step away from the game a little bit. I'll check what's up every now and then, but I don't really look into it."

His elder sibling, 30-year-old Corey, just happens to be upholding big brother duties. He also happens to be a Major League player himself, having spent 10 years and counting with six different teams. But even Corey can't let the younger Patterson get too worked up about signings that could affect his brother's playing time.

In fact, Eric Patterson felt more comfortable coming into camp this year than in seasons past, even though he's well aware he's out of options and not guaranteed a roster spot come Opening Day.

"Last year, I got a lot of playing time, and for me, it's all I really wanted -- just an opportunity to get out there every day and be able to relax and show what I can bring to the team," Patterson said. "Coming into Spring Training, having finished the year on a good note, it's been easy for me to relax. I don't have to prove anything anymore. I just need to go out and continue to get work in everywhere."

"In years past, I haven't really felt good as far as coming in here and feeling comfortable. I never felt great at the plate and every at-bat I felt different, whether it was a different stance or something. So I just really think the way I finished last year has helped the comfort level and allowed me to relax."

Since coming over in the 2008 trade that sent Rich Harden to the Cubs, the 26-year-old Patterson has seen five stints in Oakland, the most recent being his most productive. After posting a .167 average in 12 games over his first two stints last year, he boasted a .344 mark with 14 walks and five stolen bases in his final one -- which began Aug. 28 and took him to the end of the season.

Patterson knows things have changed since then, though. The A's have a solid backup infielder in Rosales, along with several fourth-outfield choices, making his role very much unknown at the moment.

"I've always been a firm believer that if you can play at this level, you're going to play," he said. "I'd love to be here with this club, but if I don't fit in with what they're trying to do here, I certainly understand that."

In 16 games this spring, Patterson has compiled a respectable .289 average with 13 hits and seven RBIs while being his aggressive defensive self in stints at second base, center field and left field. He's also reached base safely in each of his past six games, giving the A's much to think about in the next week.

"The biggest thing for me is getting the opportunity to play and show guys I can have good [at-bats] here and have an impact on this baseball team while showing some versatility," Patterson said. "That way, if it doesn't work here, I can latch on somewhere else."

Patterson joins Jake Fox as the two A's players out of options, yet he's found an upside to what many consider an unfortunate situation.

"The good thing about the whole out of options thing is that you kind of understand where you lie when all is said and done, how your team needs you, how other teams need you," Patterson said. "But all I can do right now is get my work in because whatever happens, happens."

Patterson is one of seven players competing for what appears to be three bench spots, one of which is presumably a lock for Eric Chavez if he stays healthy. The final two, though, are up for grabs between Patterson, Fox, Gross, Rosales and Steve Tolleson.

According to assistant general manager David Forst, the club will definitely "take into account" Patterson and Fox's situations.

"You have to," Forst said. "We've got 10 more days, so a decision probably won't be made until we absolutely have to."

Until then, Patterson plans on putting in as much work on the field as he's allowed, no matter the position. If you had asked the utility guy two years ago if he preferred the outfield or infield, he would have chosen the latter within seconds. Now, he says "it doesn't matter."

"As long as I'm on the field, I'm happy," Patterson said. "I need to get work in at all places, so whatever gets me in the lineup every day is fine with me."

2010 CLIPS

Hustle's the name of Rosales' game

John Shea, Chronicle Staff Writer, 4/27/2010

Pete Rose-ales.

That's who he is. Hustling everywhere. He sprints around the bases on home runs. Sprints to first base on walks. When a reporter asked for an interview, he actually sprinted through the clubhouse to get prepared.

Adam Rosales doesn't waste any of his time in the big leagues. He relishes every minute of it.

"It's a kid's game, man," said Rosales, smiling.

The A's have an appreciative utility infielder on their hands. A valuable one, too. Especially with second baseman Mark Ellis on the disabled list and first baseman Daric Barton in limbo with a small finger fracture.

Rosales was acquired in a Feb. 1 trade with the Reds. He played 105 games in 2008 and 2009 with Cincinnati and impressed a fan base that knows something about hustle, considering it's the baseball home of hustlin' icon Pete Rose.

With 66 hits to his name, Rosales needs just 4,190 more to be mentioned in the same breath as the hits king, but that doesn't mean he can't show some of that Rose-like giddyup.

While with the Reds, Rosales got a chance to meet Rose before a game at Great American Ball Park.

"He said he likes the way I play the game," Rosales said.

Fast. The only gear he has.

When Rosales homered off Joe Saunders in Anaheim on April 11, he sprinted out of the box and didn't slow down until he crossed the plate. No home run trot for this guy. He drew a fourth-inning walk on Sunday and shot like a cannon to first base.

His energetic approach isn't intended to show up the opposition or cozy up to management. It's just his style. Has been since he was a kid, he said, since he played Little League on the fields around Park Ridge, Ill., just outside Chicago.

"First time I hit a home run, I jogged around the bases and felt I slowed the game down," Rosales said. "After that, I said I'm going to run hard. I've been doing it since I was 12 years old. I promised myself if I ever had the opportunity to play at a high level, I'd keep doing it. I'm keeping a promise to my 12-year-old self. Fans seem to appreciate it."

Is it tiring?

"That's why we sleep, man," he said.

Manager Bob Geren likes Rosales' versatility as much as his hustle. Rosales started 13 of the past 14 games, including 12 at second base. He started at third on Saturday when Kevin Kouzmanoff rested and switched to first late in Sunday's game after Barton got hurt - Barton will be re-evaluated before tonight's game against the Rays in St. Petersburg, Fla.

"Adam's doing everything. He plays all the positions and hustles his butt off," Geren said. "I like that. There's nothing you can't like about the guy."

Rosales is hitting .250 with eight RBIs. He hit .212 with the Reds and was a .299 hitter over two seasons at Triple-A Louisville.

As a big-leaguer, Rosales has as much fun as he did playing as a kid.

Before Sunday's game at the Coliseum, A's PR people asked him to greet thousands of Little Leaguers as they paraded around the field. Rosales did it with a smile for 45 minutes, offering handshakes, high-fives and lots of low-fives.

"I still consider myself a Little Leaguer," said Rosales, who wears his green socks to his knees. "If I'm not enjoying myself, I shouldn't be here. You've got to keep it fun because it is a grind. It's 162-plus games. You've got to keep a smile on your face and enjoy every moment you're out there."

Infielder Adam Rosales is making serious run for roster spot with A's

By Joe Stiglich, Oakland Tribune, 3/23/2010

Adam Rosales didn't wear a Cincinnati Reds uniform very long, but his all-out style of play earned him a pretty nice comparison.

The infielder became known in Cincinnati as "Pete Rosales," a reference to Pete Rose, a rather famous ex-Red who also gained attention for his hustle.

Rosales has impressed the A's with more than his attitude since coming over in a Feb. 1 trade. He's played well enough this spring to put heat on Cliff Pennington in the battle for the starting shortstop job.

Despite the competition, Rosales goes about his business like a man who understands he's getting paid to play a kid's game.

"I've just kind of always listened to what the coaches said," Rosales, 26, said. "One thing that was always constant was work hard, play hard, be smart. You should always enjoy the game."

The A's knew they were getting a high-energy player when they acquired Rosales for infielder Aaron Miles and a player to be named (the A's also got outfielder Willy Taveras in the deal but released him immediately).

They like the results they've seen, as well.

Rosales has hit .333 in 14 Cactus League games, seeing action at second base and third base as well as shortstop.

He hit just .213 in 87 games last season with Cincinnati, but his versatility attracted the A's. He played all four infield spots last season.

But the first thing usually mentioned about Rosales is his hustle, not surprising for a player who hardly took the express route to the major leagues.

Cincinnati drafted him in the 12th round out of Western Michigan in 2005, and he made his big league debut in 2008 at age 25.

Rosales drew the spotlight last season by sprinting around the bases after each of his four homers. It wasn't a ploy for attention — Rosales said he's done the same thing since he was 12.

"The first time I hit one out of the park, I jogged around the bases and it felt really awkward," he said. "It felt like it took too much time."

Reds right-hander Jared Burton said he recalls his former teammate taking a bat and hitting baseballs into the corners of the outfield, then running to retrieve them. That's one way Rosales got his conditioning in.

"He's one of those guys, if he plays the game for 15 years, he'll still be like a kid," Burton said. "He appreciates every chance he gets out there."

Sometimes Rosales' up-tempo style gets the best of him.

"The biggest thing with Adam is he gets out of control at times," A's second baseman Mark Ellis said. "But he's gotten so much better since camp started. He plays very hard. He doesn't say a whole lot. He's just going about his business."

He could start the season in the minor leagues if he doesn't beat out Pennington at shortstop. Jake Fox and Eric Patterson are also fighting to make the team as utility men, and both are out of options.

"Once you start worrying about (making the team), you start pressing," Rosales said. "You've just got to keep the fun in it or else you're going to get yourself in trouble."

Obtained: Selected in the 2nd round of the 2008 First-Year Player Draft
Contract Status: First year of a one-year contract through 2010.

2010 HIGHLIGHTS

- Was the only non-roster invitee to make the A's Opening Day roster and made his Major League debut in the sixth inning, April 7 against Seattle...struck out the first batter he faced (Rob Johnson) and ended up tossing 2.1 scoreless innings (1 h, 1 bb, 2 so)...his debut came in his third professional season and was 15 days before his 23rd birthday...had pitched just nine games above the Single-A level entering the season.
- Made his second career appearance April 11 at Los Angeles and tossed 3.0 innings in the A's 9-4 win for his first career save.
- Was credited with his first ML win May 11 at Texas and was also charged with the blown save...entered the game in the 11th inning with a 6-5 lead but allowed a two-out RBI single to Borbon to tie the game...the A's then scored a run in the 13th and he retired three of four in the bottom of the inning for the win.
- Struck out in the 12th inning in the game at Texas to become the first A's pitcher to bat in a non-interleague game since Todd Stottlemire also struck out on August 16, 1985 at Kansas City
- Made his first Major League start May 15 at Los Angeles after Justin Duchscherer was scratched minutes before first pitch...retired each of the first 11 batters he faced before allowing three straight hits, capped by a three-run home run by Morales...allowed a career high three runs in 3.2 innings and was charged with his first career loss.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Was the A's second round selection in the 2008 draft and compiled a 10-11 record and a 4.16 ERA (72 er in 155.2 ip) in 33 games, 31 starts, in his first two professional seasons... was named as the A's number six prospect by Baseball America following the 2009 season and was also tabbed as having the Best Slider.

2009 HIGHLIGHTS

Began his first full professional season at Single-A Stockton but earned a late season promotion to Double-A Midland and combined for a 10-10 record and a 4.09 ERA in 27 games, all starts...tied for fifth in the A's farm system in wins (10) and ranked seventh in ERA (4.09), strikeouts (113) and innings (136.1)...allowed a .233 opponents batting average, including .224 (66 for 295) against right-handed hitters and .245 (52 for 212) against left-handers...opponents hit .216 with runners in scoring position and were 10 for 59 (.169) with RISP and two outs.

A's welcome Ben Sheets' rambunctious nature

By Joe Stiglich, Oakland Tribune, 4/27/2010

Ben Sheets often is heard before he's seen in the A's clubhouse. On a team where the veterans usually speak softly and lead by example, Sheets deviates from that pattern with his rambunctious personality. He'll greet teammates by belting out one of his favorite lines — "Good morning, champions!" — as he arrives for a game. He recently had two mini basketball hoops installed in the home clubhouse at the Oakland Coliseum. Now nerf basketballs are flying through the air before and after batting practice. "You never know when the Golden State Warriors coaching staff is going to walk through," Sheets said. "Somebody might have a great jumper." Sheets was signed to a one-year, $10 million contract in January because the A's wanted a proven veteran to anchor their rotation. After missing all of last season with an elbow injury, the right-hander is 1-1 with a 2.74 ERA and appears to be rounding into form. He'll make his fifth start today against the Tampa Bay Rays as the A's begin a six-game road trip. But teammates say they also benefit from his lighthearted spirit. Players such as designated hitter Eric Chavez and second baseman Mark Ellis, the longest-tenured Athletics, set a standard with their work ethic and professionalism. Sheets, 31, adds a dash of nuttiness, and Chavez says it's a welcome addition. "We need some loudness every once in a while," Chavez said. "And coming from a guy who's had some experience, it's pretty good for us. I'm not loud, so someone needs to be loud."

Chavez said he heard from friends around the majors that Sheets could be a loose cannon. Ellis got a similar report from Geoff Jenkins, a teammate of Sheets' with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Reliever Michael Wuertz, who faced the Brewers plenty while pitching for the Chicago Cubs, said he knew Sheets previously only from watching him on the mound. Now the two have lockers next to each other at the Coliseum.

"Everything he portrays here in the clubhouse is everything I heard, just how good of a person he is and how good of a teammate," Wuertz said.

Sheets' fun-loving approach might ring hollow if he didn't have the credentials to go with it. Because he's a four-time All-Star, younger players pay attention to how he carries himself.

"You see a guy who's had a lot of success at the big league level, and you see that you don't have to worry about things off the field," second-year closer Andrew Bailey said, adding that Sheets also knows when to get serious. "You can still have fun in this game, treat it like Little League, I guess."

Much was made about the mentor role that Sheets could play for the A's young pitchers. But the advice is flowing both ways, as Sheets pumps his teammates for information after spending his first eight seasons in the National League.

Bailey is struck by something else: After Sheets comes out of a game, he retires to the clubhouse for a short period but returns to the dugout to cheer his teammates.

Many starters remain in the clubhouse and watch the rest of the game on TV.

"I've never seen that before, even in the minor leagues," Bailey said. "He (returns) and watches the rest of game, however much of the game is left. He wants to be out there."

Sheets said it's been easy assimilating with the A's. As for his loose approach, he doesn't see any reason to behave differently.

"Why not have fun?" he asked. "It's a long season. If you don't have fun it'd be miserable. Baseball is fun."

CATCHER

Height/Weight: 5-11 / 196 Bats/Throws: Right / Right
Birthdate: October 4, 1983 Opening Day Age: 26
Birthplace/Resides: Wailuku, Hawaii / Redondo Beach, California
Major League Service: 2 years, 113 days
Obtained: Selected in the 2nd round of the 2004 First-Year Player Draft
Contract Status: First year of a one-year contract through 2010.

2010 HIGHLIGHTS

- Made his third straight Opening Day start at catcher, April 5 against Seattle...committed two error, the first two-error game of his career.
- Had his seventh career walk-off hit April 7 against Seattle, a double...the three walk-off doubles tie Terrence Long for the most in Oakland history.
- Hit a three-run home run in the first inning April 22 against New York and then grounded into a triple play in the sixth inning...it was the seventh triple play turned against the A's in Oakland history, the first since Geronimo Berroa hit into one May 14, 1994 at Kansas City.
- Was placed on the 15-day disabled list April 30, retroactive to April 24, with an intercostal strain...it was his first career stint on the DL and it marked the first time over the last three years he has gone more than two consecutive games without starting at catcher.
- Went 3 for 8 (.375) with four runs, two doubles, a home run, five RBI and two walks in three starts at catcher on a rehab assignment with Triple-A Sacramento from May 11 to 15.
- Was reinstated from the DL May 16 and started each of the A's first 11 games at catcher following his return, matching the longest consecutive games started streak at catcher of his career (June 6-18, 2008 and July 21-August 2, 2008).
- Drove in the winning run May 18 against Seattle with a RBI single in the bottom of the 10th inning...it was his second walk-off hit of the season and the eighth of his career (three singles, two doubles, two home runs)...the eight walk-off hits are tied for third most in Oakland history.
- Had a career best streak of four consecutive multiple hit games from June 1-4 (8 for 19, 421)...including June 3 at Boston when he had his first career two-homer game.
- Matched his career high with four hits June 8 against Los Angeles (fourth time, first since April 21, 2009 at New York).
- Was placed on the bereavement list June 11 and missed the three-game series at San Francisco before returning to action on June 15.

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS

Has led American League catchers in games started in each of the last two seasons and is a .276 hitter in 295 games over that span...made his Major League debut in 2007 and hit .249 in 68 games...entering the 2010 season, has started 324 of the A's 393 (82.4%) games behind the plate since Jason Kendall was traded July 16, 2007...had a team-leading 88 RBI in 2009 to become just the second catcher in Athletics history to lead the club in RBI...had two pinch homers in 2008 and is 7 for 14 (.500) with a double, two home runs, six RBI, two walks and a hit by pitch in his career in the pinch, through 2009...named to the Texas League All-Star team in 2006 at Midland...played for United States in the All-Star Futures Game that year at Pittsburgh...was originally drafted by the A's in the second round of the 2004 draft...is the fourth Hawaiian born player to play for the Athletics, joining Shane Komine (2006), Ron Darling (1991-95) and Lenn Sakata (1986).

2009 HIGHLIGHTS

Led American League catchers in games started for the second consecutive season (132) and continued to improve offensively...had career-highs in runs (74), hits (156), doubles (37), home runs (15), RBI (88), stolen bases (8) and slugging percentage (.421)...led the A's in hits, doubles, RBI, slugging, hit by pitches (8), sacrifice flies (7), multiple RBI games (20) and go-ahead RBI (18)...became just the second catcher in Athletics history to lead the club in RBI...the other was Frankie Hayes, who had 78 RBI for Philadelphia in 1944...led the A's in hits for the second consecutive season but his slugging percentage was the lowest ever by an Oakland team leader...struck out 59 times for an average of 10.41 plate appearances per strikeout...that was the sixth best ratio in the American League...led AL catchers in doubles (34), RBI (83) and stolen bases (8), ranked second in runs (71) and third in hits (144).

Suzuki set for season 3

By Mark Brown / Special to the Star-Bulletin 4/4/2010

If you're looking to speak with Kurt Suzuki after a game, be prepared to wait. If you wish to speak with Suzuki prior to a game, he's likely nowhere to be found. That's because the Wailuku, Maui, native is busy lifting weights, scouting other teams, taking extra batting practice, lifting more weights and generally exhibiting a work ethic that would push anyone to the brink.

In just two years with Oakland, Suzuki, the A's everyday catcher, has rapidly emerged as "the best kept secret in baseball," according to Bob Geren, his manager. That may not be good enough for the 26-year-old Baldwin graduate as he continues to push himself in areas unknown to most players.

Usually, he's the first in the locker room each day, and one of the last to leave. After games, reporters routinely hang around his locker for a considerable period of time because he's usually riding the stationary bike long after the final out.

"Nothing is given to you, and you need to figure things out on your own," he said the other day in the A's spring training clubhouse. "I'm looking to be a complete player and always learning. I can't see a moment where I will not stop learning."

Suzuki says "consistency" best describes his approach to the game.

"Results are results, and numbers are numbers," he added. "Baseball is a game of ups and downs. I want to be as consistent as I can every year."

In his two full years at the major league level, Suzuki hit .279 in 2008 and .274 last season. In the space of one season, his RBI total jumped dramatically to a club-high 88 last season. In the process, Suzuki became only the second catcher in franchise history to lead the A's in RBIs. The other was Frankie Hayes for the 1944 Philadelphia Athletics.

Suzuki topped AL catchers in doubles, RBIs and stolen bases, and was second in runs scored and third in hits.

For 2010, Suzuki may have a chance to increase that RBI total. The A's have loaded their lineup with speed at the top, though leadoff hitter Coco Crisp is out for at least a month with a broken pinkie. Center fielder Rajai Davis is coming off a .305 season and a team-high 41 stolen bases.

For the modest Suzuki, the goal is not necessarily just to improve his offensive numbers.

"I want to be known as a guy who can do it all," Suzuki said. "Players tend to concentrate on some areas of their game. I'm always looking to improve in every aspect."

Suzuki emerged as a strong force in handling the pitching staff.

Adhering to that work ethic, Suzuki, before each series, meets with the coaching staff to go over hitters, study tape and then confer with pitchers.

"The biggest thing for Kurt is his calming effect on the staff," starter Brett Anderson said after going five innings last Sunday in a spring training game against Colorado. "Guys around here have a tendency to get hyped up, and he knows how to settle a pitcher down and create an intelligent pace."

To complement his bat and handling of the staff, Suzuki has developed as a premier defensive catcher. Last season, he led AL catchers in innings, putouts and total chances. He was second in the league in assists and fourth in fielding percentage. Suzuki was rated as the third best defensive catcher in the AL by Baseball America's best tools survey.

"He is a phenomenal defensive catcher," Anderson added. "I have a tendency to throw breaking balls in the dirt, and he has saved me so many times."

Suzuki has not forgotten his roots. Returning to the islands each winter, he said visits to family and friends do the mind and body well.

"There are many great players from home," he said. "Yep, I played against (the Phillies' Shane) Victorino in high school, and he was an amazing player. I was struck how good this guy was in every sport."

For now, Suzuki is preparing to move ahead in a career destined to be sprinkled with achievements and accolades.

"He is an overachiever," Geren said. "Here's a guy from a small high school, and an area producing not many major leaguers."

"He walks on at Cal State Fullerton, and helps them win the national championship. That says something about his character and athletic ability. He simply has a strong desire to win and a great work ethic."

2010 CLIPSZiegler winds up for Pastime for Patriots

Initiative to launch in conjunction with Salute to Armed Forces

By Jane Lee / MLB.com / 05-07-2010

OAKLAND -- When a young Brad Ziegler brought home a Revolutionary War assignment, his father fondly remembers the history project turning into something of a family activity.

"We ended up enacting the whole thing out," Greg Ziegler recalls.

The memory of those days is somewhat a blur now, but the passion exuded in those moments for selfless soldiers has since stayed with Brad, now 30 and a member of Oakland's own corps known as the bullpen.

"I know that I always grew up liking history, especially war history," Brad Ziegler says. "So I watched a lot of movies, read a lot of books. The more I did, the more I realized the incredible sacrifice that these people are going through just to put our country in a position right now where we have all these freedoms. I mean, it's a great country to live in."

It's one that has allowed the ballplayer to not only live out his dreams on the field, but also take advantage of his status as a member of the green and gold to support those battling in faraway lands for the pride and protection of the red, white and blue.

Such opportunity will officially transform into a charity Saturday when Brad Ziegler, with parents Greg and Lisa watching from the stands, launches the creation of his Pastime for Patriots Foundation. The commencement will aptly fall in conjunction with the A's Salute to Armed Forces Day and award 400 tickets to military families for Oakland's afternoon matchup with Tampa Bay.

Ziegler has purchased 200 of the tickets -- a donation matched by the A's Community Fund to aid in the efforts of providing a day at the ballpark for family members of troops who are currently overseas and those who have recently returned from action.

Through the foundation, the A's pitcher plans on making his purchase of baseball tickets for these families an ongoing endeavor, one he hopes expands through several other Major League parks as quickly as the charity formed.

"This past offseason was when everything started coming together," Ziegler said. "I always felt like I could contribute, but I never felt like I was in a position to head something up. I was hoping I'd have enough name recognition at some point to where, if I were going to put my name on something, it would have a little credibility."

"Just seeing other ballplayers start their own foundations and working on something they're passionate about, I thought, 'You know what? I'm going to try something.'"

Now, months later, Pastime for Patriots is already owner of a logo -- one that will hopefully soon receive the stamp of a copyright -- along with a forming web site that will be up and running shortly. In the meantime, though, Ziegler is focused on interacting with the people who initially inspired his cause.

“The more you get in touch with these people we’re helping, the more you understand their situation and how difficult it can be,” he said. “I know very well how hard it can be on a family to be traveling all the time and to be away from home and from your kids. These people are doing the same thing, except they’re going months and sometimes years without seeing their family members.

“I feel like if we can get them to the ballpark for a day and ease some of the costs of that, take their minds off of what’s going on, that to me is the big initiative. Let’s get these people out of the house for a night, no matter what it costs.”

Ziegler will buy 150 tickets per game for families on July 9, Aug. 6 and Sept. 21, when the A’s Community Fund will once again match those purchases. Furthermore, a large portion of the money raised through his foundation will eventually contribute to college scholarships for high school students who have had a parent killed in action.

The A’s pitcher, now a father to 2 1/2-year-old Kaylin, grew up surrounded by a close family and a large dose of faith in Odessa, Mo., where his parents raised him in a nurturing environment, but at the same time reminded him that not all are so fortunate.

“I never had to grow up without a parent, and I can’t imagine -- whether you’re an infant or a junior in high school -- what that’s like,” he said. “It’s going to change their life from that point on from what it would have been. I don’t want that to be any kind of hindrance for them for possibly furthering their education to be able to do something later in life.”

Ziegler is hoping enough funds will be in place for what he envisions to be the first of several abundant scholarships by May 2011. Additionally, he plans to provide care packages for a handful of Bay Area brigades and battalions stationed overseas, where he’s also planning a trip this offseason. And all those interested in supporting the pitcher’s efforts -- whether simply through learning more about the charity or by making donations -- can visit tables on Saturday set up by the Oakland Coliseum concourse level.

“Anything we receive from then on will be tax-deductable,” he assured. “I want to do everything I can to make sure that my donations to the foundation cover the maintenance costs -- kind of the grunt work -- and everyone else who donates, their money is going directly to these troops and their families.”

Much of said grunt work is currently being handled by the pitcher’s agents, Rob Martin and Matt Cormier, who want their client to keep much of his focus on the mound. After all, it’s work as a Major League reliever that has created opportunities to help those in need.

“I got to wear the stars and stripes and play on the field,” he said. “Now is the time where I can take the stars and stripes thing a little further and hopefully do some good with it. This isn’t just something I hope to do throughout my playing career but something I hope to be a part of the rest of my life.”

His father, for one, believes the charity will take on a life of its own -- much like the recreation of the Revolutionary War did in his living room a couple decades ago.

“He believes in justice and in pursuing things that are right,” Greg Ziegler said. “It’s not a blind following, by any means. I think he does have a real appreciation for the freedoms that we have, and he knows that people have made a lot of sacrifices for us to have those freedoms.

“I’m grateful that he accepts the responsibility to do something good with the way that he is blessed. Brad has been given a lot of gifts and great privileges, and he’s worked hard. I’m thankful he’s interested in giving back and not just accumulating things for himself.”
